

'Jail No Solution' ...

Indians Request Alcoholism Aid

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

With alcoholism described as "rampant" on Nebraska's three Indian reservations, spokesmen for the Winnebago and Omaha Tribes Monday pleaded for state funds for rehabilitation services.

"It's no solution to throw a man in jail," Louis LaRose, chairman of the Winnebago Tribe, told the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

The committee, spearheaded by Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha, has sponsored a bill (LB871) which would funnel one-half of the state funds which now go to Thurston County for Indian law enforcement into the Commission on Indian Affairs for rehabilitation programs.

LaRose said he was frankly "surprised" by introduction of the bill.

"One Of Best Things" It's one of the best things for a long time... for the

(The three reservation houses the Santee in Knox County.)

About $64,000 in state funds now go to Thurston County for Indian law enforcement and rehabilitation.

But the county sheriff uses all the funds for jailing Indians, the committee was told.

"We have had a difficult time with the Thurston County sheriff in developing programs to meet the needs of Indians," LaRose said.

'Judas As Treasurer' Giving all the money to the Indians is "like asking Judas to be our treasurer," he said.

Monte Smith, who heads the alcoholism services center on the Winnebago Reservation, said the sheriff considers housing prisoners and a limited work release program to be rehabilitation services.

If jail is not rehabilitative, and statistics show it is not, Smith said, then "nothing is spent on rehabilitation."

Smith said the average Indian in the drug dependency unit operated by his center has been arrested for drunkenness 37 times.

Almost All Affected Bob Shelley, who is executive director of the alcoholism services agency for the Omaha Tribe, said 95% to 99% of the families on the reservation are "afflicted by alcoholism in some way."

Alcoholism "filters all the way down into the grade school," he said.

Each month, 154 juveniles (there are 300 enrolled in school on the reservation) are arrested, Shelley said, and most of the charges are alcohol-related.

Smith said alcoholism is "rampant" on all three reservations. The sheriff "just increases the jail population," LaRose said. "We get very little cooperation, if any, from his office," Shelley told the committee.

Two-Year Process In other action, the committee heard Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly urge the Legislature to move to a two-year appropriations process, with annual review.

That could help senators "establish better priorities of expenditure" and result in better planning, he said.

"The public is not served by rearranging priorities every 12 months," he said. LB871 and Warner's proposal, LB824, were held for later action.

Moynihan Quits U.N. Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who has been embroiled in controversy since becoming U.S. ambassador to the United Nations last year, resigned on Monday, telling President Ford: "It is time to return to teaching."

In a letter of reply, Ford accepted the resignation "with the deepest regret and reluctance," declaring that Moynihan had "asserted our position forcefully, cogently and honestly" at the United Nations.

Moynihan told reporters at the United Nations, "I assume I'll be back in government one way or other some day. I'm going back to teaching now." He seemed to rule out an early race for the U.S. Senate.

When a reporter remarked that a lot of Democrats were talking about his running next November against Sen. James M. Buckley, R-N.Y., Moynihan replied: "I'm not."

As the White House announced his resignation, Moynihan was in consultations of the U.N. Security Council in his capacity of council president for February.

Although his resignation was effective immediately, Moynihan said Harvard had agreed that he might stay on here to serve out his council presidency.

Moynihan dated his letter of resignation last Saturday and said it was the last day of his leave from teaching duties at Harvard University.

"It is time to return to teaching," he wrote, "and such are the conditions of my tenure that I return now or not at all."

Ford's letter formally accepting the resignation was dated Monday.

Moynihan, who served the Ford administration earlier as ambassador to India, wrote the President:

"You have been unfailing in your encouragement and support and I have with the fullest commitment sought to carry out your general policies and your specific instructions."

Ford replied that at the United Nations, "you have consistently elevated public discourse by puncturing pretense and by eloquently advocating the cause of reason."

After stating that the ambassador had faithfully put forward the official U.S. position, Ford wrote, "In doing so you have not only reminded Americans that we take that institution seriously but also that we take ourselves and the principles for which we stand seriously."

There had been new reports that Moynihan would resign following a controversial cablegram he sent to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and all U.S. embassies complaining about lack of support for his campaign to break up an anti-American voting bloc at the United Nations.

There were reports in late November that the outspoken Moynihan would quit the U.N. post, and he scheduled and later abruptly canceled a news conference Nov. 21, telling reporters "I am not leaving right away."

He was then called to Washington for a meeting with Ford and Kissinger, which produced a White House declaration of support.

Reports at the time indicated that Moynihan felt Kissinger and others at the State Department were not backing Moynihan's outspoken and controversial positions at the United Nations.

"Both President Ford and Secretary Kissinger expressed their strong support for the effective job Ambassador Moynihan has been doing representing the United States at the United Nations. The President wants it clearly understood that Ambassador Moynihan has his complete confidence," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen after the November meeting.

Shortly before that incident Moynihan had been criticized by British Ambassador Ivor Richard, who likened Moynihan to Wyatt Earp looking for shootouts in the O.K. Corral.

U.S. officials dismissed as wildly inaccurate reports that the State Department itself had prompted Richard to make the statement.

Moynihan is known to have been acting on instructions when he excoriated President Idi Amin of Uganda in October and when he blasted proponents of a resolution equating Zionism with racism.

Suspect Arrested In Fatal Shooting

... Victim Shot In Head

By JIM CAMDEN
Star Staff Writer

A 26-year-old man was shot and killed behind a Lincoln apartment house early Monday evening and the man suspected of firing the fatal shot is in custody.

Archie Lee Robinson of Omaha was shot in the head with small calibre pistol in a parking lot behind 1635 F after an argument that authorities believe started inside a residence on S 15th.

Robinson was pronounced dead on arrival at Lincoln General Hospital.

County Atty. Ron Lahners said a suspect was in custody, but declined to release his name. He said police were not looking for any other suspects in the incident.

Lahners said he expected to file charges Tuesday morning. The suspect was arrested by Sarpy County authorities a few hours after the shooting. When apprehended, he was enroute to Omaha in a taxi with a companion, officials said.

Lahners said the two men were acquainted, but the cause of the argument was not known. It apparently started at the residence on 15th St., was interrupted and then continued in the alley behind the apartment house, he said.

Neither Robinson nor the assailant lived in the apartment on F St., Lahners said. However, a blue Cadillac "that was in possession of the suspect" was parked in the lot.

Lahners said he did not know if the suspect owned the car or not. The suspect fled the scene on foot.

Lahners said there were at least five witnesses to the shooting.

Denney Offers Council His Own Water Plan

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City Councilman Max Denney, long a critic of the present water rate system, outlined his own set of rate proposals Monday. Denney contended his rates will conserve water, while eliminating all "the fuss and misunderstanding and all the muckey mouse" surrounding the existing rates.

Denney would give a financial break to residential customers who own water-cooled air conditioners and would give people earning less than $3,600 a year a 10% break on their water bills.

Denney has been outspoken in his opposition to the existing water rates and has unsuccessfully tried to persuade his fellow lawmakers to do something about them. The rest of the council wanted to wait a full year to get a reading on how the new rates worked. The year is up.

Rates Endorsed Last week the Water Advisory Board stuck to the controversial rates and recommended that the council give the rates another year.

The council will hold a public hearing on that recommendation on Feb. 9. Denney says he will try to amend the water rates at that time.

The rates, which have hiked some homeowners' summer water bills by 100 to 200%, are a drastic departure from the old rate system. The new rates charge more as water consumption increases, instead of less. So would Denney's rate plan.

The Water Board and Mayor Helen Boosalis have pointed out that the rates did what the council wanted them to do last year: conserve water and generated money.

The new rates are expected to produce about $5.2 million this year, compared to the $3.2 million produced under the former rate structures. The additional money is needed to rebuild the water system.

Mayor Skeptical While Denney claimed his rates would also conserve water, Mrs. Boosalis wasn't so sure.

In a brief exchange with Denney, the mayor asked, "Will your plan produce adequate revenues?"

Said Denney, "I can't answer that right now."

The mayor, "Will it foster conservation?" Denney, "Yes, I think it will."

Mrs. Boosalis, "What kind of revenues will it produce?"

Denney, "I said I don't have the answer to that question yet."

Mrs. Boosalis, "Mr. City Attorney, is it constitutional for the city to give people a break on their bills?"

Replied City Atty. Charles Humble, "I'll have to take a look at it."

The mayor, "You haven't seen this yet?"

Humble, "This is the first time."

Denney, "That is why I'm telling you about this now so you'll have time to study this."

Monthly Billings

Denney claimed his rates would enable homeowners to keep better track of their water usage since he is proposing that bills be mailed out on a monthly basis, instead of every two months.

Under the council chairman's plan, all residential customers would pay 25 cents for the first 30 units of water, 40 cents for 31 to 60 units of water and 50 cents for more than 60 units of water consumed. A unit is 100 cubic feet of water.

The existing schedule charges 25 cents for each unit of water in the base demand bracket, 50 cents as the usage moves into the first demand bracket and 75 cents as usage moves into the second demand bracket.

Denney would charge commercial customers 21 cents for the first 30,000 units of water used and 35 cents when consumption spilled over 30,000 units.

Industrial customers would pay a flat 16-cent fee for each unit of water.

The existing rates charge commercial users 19 cents for their base rate and industrial users 14 cents for their base rate.

Commercial Rates Denney also would charge residential customers with water-cooled air conditioners the commercial rate.

Public Works Director Bob Obering said that proposal might encourage homeowners to switch to water-cooled air conditioners to get the cheaper commercial rates.

Obering had no comment on Denney's proposal, except to speculate, "Conceivably, this could cause some people to have higher rates."

Obering said he will have some computer tests run on Denney's plan to see what kind of money would be raised and how his rates would affect various customers' water bills.

Denney says that when the tests are completed, it will prove that his rates are better. And, he asserted, "People will be able to understand them, which is more than they can with what we've got now."

Odorous Feedlot Case Is Reargued

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A Colfax County feedlot, the subject of a lawsuit over odor which has livestock feeders in the state worried, Monday was likened to a "pig in the parlor instead of the barnyard."

An attorney for Glenn Botsch and his wife told the Nebraska Supreme Court the feedlot was "the right thing in the wrong place."

But that statement had representatives of livestock interests in attendance wondering, "If rural Colfax County isn't the right place for a feedlot, what is?"

Monday's arguments concerned the Leigh Land Co.'s request that the court reconsider its Dec. 24 decision which said the feedlot, although meeting sanitation laws, could be considered a nuisance and subject to legal injunction.

Not Same Court

However, the seven-man court which heard the original arguments was not the same court which agreed to reconsider. During the fall session, the court split into separate divisions and called on some district court judges to assist in handling the large number of cases.

Two Supreme Court judges who were on the panel which heard the case, Hale McCown and Paul White, dissented from the five-man majority position which included district judges.

Consequently, Monday's arguments were heard by a slightly different court.

'High Uninhabitable'

Botsch claimed the 2,250-head feedlot south of him created such odor and fly problems that his home and 120-acre farm were "well nigh uninhabitable."

A district court judge dismissed Botsch's case, which was then appealed to the State Supreme Court.

An attorney for Leigh Land

Co. told the court that the feedlot uses the most modern equipment and techniques for controlling any problems the manure may cause. (The attorney for Botsch said the feedlot produced enough manure annually to fill 911 trucks.)

Leigh's attorney also pointed out that no person or animal had suffered any health problems resulting from the feedlot and noted that an appraiser testified that the feedlot made no difference to the value of the Botsch farm.

Not Improperly Run

Nor, he said, was any evidence brought out to indicate the feedlot was improperly run. The feedlot could become a public nuisance only if it were improperly maintained, he argued.

The State Department of Environmental Control would have compelled the feedlot to construct holding ponds, which Botsch said initiated the odor problem. Leigh's attorney said.

Botsch's attorney, however, questioned the DEC's inspection. He said inspectors took no samples of water downstream from the feedlot nor did they pursue the nuisance aspect.

Perhaps, the court should examine whether the DEC followed its own rules in giving the Leigh feedlot a clean bill of health, he said.

Vatican City (UPI) — Pope Paul VI said Monday chastity strengthens a person's character and widens vision.

"Chastity is a virtue that leaves its mark on one's whole personality, on both inward and outward behavior," the Pope said in a Candelmas homily in St. Peter's Basilica.

The pontiff spoke to friars and nuns who gave the Pope blessed candles in an annual ceremony commemorating the presentation of Jesus in the Temple.

Groundhogs' Help Wasn't Needed

By United Press International

Blizzard snows, winds of near hurricane proportions, ice, flash floods and savage winds belted the East Monday and Monday night, shattering ground and air travel in the most vicious weather of the winter.

A Groundhog Day subzero cold wave and another snow storm blitzed the Middle West.

The eastern storm, stretching from Virginia to Maine, cut heat and electricity to some 60,000 homes in New Jersey, ripped the North Carolina coast with winds up to 63 miles per hour, and iced New York City commuter trains until they were five hours late.

It was the day when humans are supposed to discover how long winter will last by watching ground hogs.

Humans hardly needed a hint Monday, but for what it was worth all prognosticating groundhogs saw their shadows upon emerging from their dens which, according to groundhog believers, means there will be six more weeks of winter.

Icy temperatures followed upon the winter blasts in the East.

Along the suffering eastern seaboard.

— Blizzard snow, driven by 50 miles an hour winds, hit New Jersey. Wind-topped trees snapped power lines and an estimated 60,000 homes were without power and heat in near zero temperatures.

— The North Carolina winds were called "almost of hurricane proportions" by the National Weather Service. They left a trail of flooded streets, damaged mobile homes, sunken boats and downed power lines.

— Howling winds along the New England coast were also of hurricane proportions. The temperatures went into a nosedive from the high 40s and turned the highways icy.

— A flash flood from a tributary of the Penobscot River swept through downtown Bangor, Maine, rushing over parked cars and into the basements of banks and businesses.

— Fifty-mile-an-hour winds drove blizzard snows in Connecticut.

Even Hawaii had a cold snap. The 53 degrees at Honolulu broke the record for the date.

Weather-prognosticating groundhogs — Punxsutawney Phil at Groundhog at Sun Prairie, Wis., and Babe, the official forecast of the Indianapolis Zoo — ventured out, saw their shadows and retreated hastily.

Chester Hodnicki, 57, of Chicopee, Mass., slipped and fell into a deep puddle of water when he left his home at 4 a.m. to start his car. He lay on the ground for about two hours before he was found by his wife.

"He was literally frozen to the ground," a spokesman said at Holyoke Hospital, where he was treated for frostbite.

High winds tore down power lines in many communities of the East and Midwest. More than 14,000 households and businesses were left without electricity in southeastern Pennsylvania.

At least 5,000 customers of Western Massachusetts Electric Co. lost power. The Hartford Electric Light Co. said more than 5,000 of its customers were affected.

In the Detroit area, 13,000 customers of Consumers Power Co. were left in darkness and cold for three hours.

Twelve St. Louis policemen en route to Jefferson City to lobby for a pay increase were injured when their bus, stopped on snow-swept Interstate 70 near Wright City, Mo., because of a multiple-vehicle accident, was hit from behind by a tractor-trailer truck. None was injured seriously.

About $64,000 in state funds now go to Thurston County for Indian law enforcement and rehabilitation.

But the county sheriff uses all the funds for jailing Indians, the committee was told.

"We have had a difficult time with the Thurston County sheriff in developing programs to meet the needs of Indians," LaRose said.

'Judas As Treasurer'

Giving all the money to the sheriff is "like asking Judas to be our treasurer," he said.

Monte Smith, who heads the alcoholism services center on the Winnebago Reservation, said the sheriff considers housing prisoners and a limited work release program to be rehabilitation services.

If jail is not rehabilitative, and statistics show it is not, Smith said, then "nothing is spent on rehabilitation."

Almost All Affected

Bob Shelley, who is executive director of the alcoholism services agency for the Omaha Tribe, said 95% to 99% of the families on the reservation are "afflicted by alcoholism in some way."

Alcoholism "filters all the way down into the grade school," he said.

Each month, 154 juveniles (there are 300 enrolled in school on the reservation) are arrested, Shelley said, and most of the charges are alcohol-related.

Smith said alcoholism is "rampant" on all three reservations.

The sheriff "just increases the jail population," LaRose said. "We get very little cooperation, if any, from his office," Shelley told the committee.

Two-Year Process

In other action, the committee heard Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly urge the Legislature to move to a two-year appropriations process, with annual review.

That could help senators "establish better priorities of expenditure" and result in better planning, he said.

"The public is not served by rearranging priorities every 12 months," he said.

LB871 and Warner's proposal, LB824, were held for later action.

Moynihan Quits U.N. Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who has been embroiled in controversy since becoming U.S. ambassador to the United Nations last year, resigned on Monday, telling President Ford: "It is time to return to teaching."

In a letter of reply, Ford accepted the resignation "with the deepest regret and reluctance," declaring that Moynihan had "asserted our position forcefully, cogently and honestly" at the United Nations.

Moynihan told reporters at the United Nations, "I assume I'll be back in government one way or other some day. I'm going back to teaching now." He seemed to rule out an early race for the U.S. Senate.

When a reporter remarked that a lot of Democrats were talking about his running next November against Sen. James M. Buckley, R-N.Y., Moynihan replied: "I'm not."

As the White House announced his resignation, Moynihan was in consultations of the U.N. Security Council in his capacity of council president for February.

Although his resignation was effective immediately, Moynihan said Harvard had agreed that he might stay on here to serve out his council presidency.

Moynihan dated his letter of resignation last Saturday and said it was the last day of his leave from teaching duties at Harvard University.

"It is time to return to teaching," he wrote, "and such are the conditions of my tenure that I return now or not at all."

Ford's letter formally accepting the resignation was dated Monday.

Moynihan, who served the Ford administration earlier as ambassador to India, wrote the President:

"You have been unfailing in your encouragement and support and I have with the fullest commitment sought to carry out your general policies and your specific instructions."

Ford replied that at the United Nations, "you have consistently elevated public discourse by puncturing pretense and by eloquently advocating the cause of reason."

After stating that the ambassador had faithfully put forward the official U.S. position, Ford wrote, "In doing so you have not only reminded Americans that we take that institution seriously but also that we take ourselves and the principles for which we stand seriously."

There had been new reports that Moynihan would resign following a controversial cablegram he sent to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and all U.S. embassies complaining about lack of support for his campaign to break up an anti-American voting bloc at the United Nations.

There were reports in late November that the outspoken Moynihan would quit the U.N. post, and he scheduled and later abruptly canceled a news conference Nov. 21, telling reporters: "I am not leaving right away."

He was then called to Washington for a meeting with Ford and Kissinger, which produced a White House declaration of support.

Reports at the time indicated that Moynihan felt Kissinger and others at the State Department were not backing Moynihan's outspoken and controversial positions at the United Nations.

Both President Ford and Secretary Kissinger expressed their strong support for the effective job Ambassador Moynihan has been doing representing the United States at the United Nations. The President wants it clearly understood that Ambassador Moynihan has his complete confidence," said White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen after the November meeting.

Shortly before that incident Moynihan had been criticized by British Ambassador Ivor Richard, who likened Moynihan to Wyatt Earp looking for shootouts in the O.K. Corral. U.S. officials dismissed as wildly inaccurate reports that the State Department itself had prompted Richard to make the statement.

Moynihan is known to have been acting in instructions when he excoriated President Idi Amin of Uganda in October and when he blasted proponents of a resolution equating Zionism with racism.

Denney Offers Council His Own Water Plan

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City Councilman Max Denney, long a critic of the present water rate system, outlined his own set of rate proposals Monday. Denney contended his rates will conserve water, while eliminating all "the fuss and misunderstanding and all the mickey mouse" surrounding the existing rates.

Denney would give a financial break to residential customers who own water-cooled air conditioners and would give people earning less than $3,600 a year a 10% break on their water bills.

Denney has been outspoken in his opposition to the existing water rates and has unsuccessfully tried to persuade his fellow lawmakers to do something about them. The rest of the council wanted to wait a full year to get a reading on how the new rates worked. The year is up.

Rates Endorsed

Last week the Water Advisory Board stuck to the controversial rates and recommended that the council give the rates another year.

The council will hold a public hearing on that recommendation on Feb. 9. Denney says he will try to amend the water rates at that time.

The rates, which have hiked some homeowners' summer water bills by 100 to 200%, are a drastic departure from the old rate system. The new rates charge more as water consumption increases, instead of less. So would Denney's rate plan.

The Water Board and Mayor Helen Boosalis have pointed out that the rates did what the council wanted them to do last year: conserve water and generate money.

The new rates are expected to produce about $5.2 million this year, compared to the $3.2 million produced under the former rate structures. The additional money is needed to rebuild the water system.

Mayor Skeptical

While Denney claimed his rates would also conserve water, Mrs. Boosalis wasn't so sure.

In a brief exchange with Denney, the mayor asked, "Will your plan produce adequate revenues?"

Said Denney, "I can't answer that right now."

The mayor, "Will it foster conservation?"

Denney, "Yes, I think it will."

Mrs. Boosalis, "What kind of revenues will it produce?"

Denney, "I said I don't have the answer to that question yet."

Mrs. Boosalis, "Mr. City Attorney, is it constitutional for the city to give people a break on their bills?"

Replied City Atty. Charles Humble, "I'll have to take a look at it."

The mayor, "You haven't seen this yet?"

Humble, "This is the first time."

Denney, "That is why I'm telling you about this now so you'll have time to study this."

Monthly Billings

Denney claimed his rates would enable homeowners to keep better track of their water usage since he is proposing that bills be mailed out on a monthly basis, instead of every two months.

Under the council chairman's plan, all residential customers would pay 25 cents for the first 30 units of water, 40 cents for 31 to 60 units of water and 50 cents for more than 60 units of water consumed. A unit is 100 cubic feet of water.

The existing schedule charges 25 cents for each unit of water in the base demand bracket, 50 cents as the usage moves into the first demand bracket and 75 cents as usage moves into the second demand bracket.

Denney would charge commercial customers 21 cents for the first 30,000 units of water used and 35 cents when consumption spilled over 30,000 units.

Industrial customers would pay a flat 16-cent fee for each unit of water.

The existing rates charge commercial users 19 cents for their base rate and industrial users 14 cents for their base rate.

Commercial Rates

Denney also would reduce residential customers with water-cooled air conditioners the commercial rate.

Public Works Director Bob Obering said that proposal might encourage homeowners to switch to water-cooled air conditioners to get the cheaper commercial rates.

Obering had no comment on Denney's proposal, except to speculate, "Conceivably, this could cause some people to have higher rates."

Obering said he will have some computer tests run on Denney's plan to see what kind of money would be raised and how his rates would affect various customers' water bills.

Denney said that when the tests are completed, it will prove that his rates are better.

And, he asserted, "People will be able to understand them, which is more than they can with what we've got now."

Monday's arguments concerned the Leigh Land Co.'s request that the court reconsider its Dec. 24 decision which said the feedlot, although meeting sanitation laws, could be considered a nuisance and subject to legal injunction.

Not Same Court

However, the seven-man court which heard the original arguments was not the same court which agreed to reconsider. During the fall session, the court split into separate divisions and called on some district court judges to assist in handling the large number of cases.

Two Supreme Court judges who were on the panel which heard the case, Hale McCown and Paul White, dissented from the five-man majority position which included district judges.

Consequently, Monday's arguments were heard by a slightly different court.

'Nigh Uninhabitable'

Botsch claimed the 2,250-head feedlot south of him created such odor, dust and fly problems that his home and 120-acre farm were "well nigh uninhabitable."

A district court judge dismissed Botsch's case, which was then appealed to the State Supreme Court.

An attorney for Leigh Land

Co. told the court that the feedlot uses the most modern equipment and techniques for controlling any problems the manure may cause. (The attorney for Botsch said the feedlot produced enough manure annually to fill 911 trucks.)

Leigh's attorney also pointed out that no person or animal had suffered any health problems resulting from the feedlot and noted that an appraiser testified that the feedlot made no difference to the value of the Botsch farm.

Not Improperly Run

Nor, he said, was any evidence brought out to indicate the feedlot was improperly run. The feedlot could become a public nuisance only if it were improperly maintained, he argued.

The State Department of Environmental Control would have compelled the feedlot to construct holding ponds, which Botsch said initiated the odor problem, Leigh's attorney said.

Botsch's attorney, however, questioned the DEC's inspection. He said inspectors took no samples of water downstream from the feedlot nor did they pursue the nuisance aspect.

Perhaps, the court should examine whether the DEC followed its own rules in giving the Leigh feedlot a clean bill of health, he said.

Pope Lauds The Virtue Of Chastity

Vatican City (UPI) — Pope Paul VI said Monday chastity strengthens a person's character and widens vision. "Chastity is a virtue that leaves its mark on one's whole personality, on both inward and outward behavior," the Pope said in a Candelmas homily in St. Peter's Basilica.

The pontiff spoke to friars and nuns who gave the Pope blessed candles in an annual ceremony commemorating the presentation of Jesus in the Temple.

Groundhogs' Help Wasn't Needed

By United Press International
Blizzard snows, winds of near hurricane proportions, ice, flash floods and savage winds belted the East Monday and Monday night, shattering ground and air travel in the most vicious weather of the winter.

A Groundhog Day subzero cold wave and another snow storm blitzed the Middle West.

The eastern storm, stretching from Virginia to Maine, cut heat and electricity to some 60,000 homes in New Jersey, ripped the North Carolina coast with winds up to 83 miles per hour, and leed New York City commuter trains until they were five hours late.

It was the day when humans are supposed to discover how long winter will last by watching ground hogs.

Humans hardly needed a hint Monday, but for what it was worth all prognosticating groundhogs saw their shadows upon emerging from their dens which, according to groundhog believers, means there will be six more weeks of winter.

Icy temperatures followed upon the winter blasts in the East.

Along the suffering eastern seaboard:

— Blizzard snows, driven by 50 miles an hour winds, hit New Jersey. Wind-torn trees snapped power lines and an estimated 60,000 homes were without power and heat in near zero temperatures.

— The North Carolina winds were called "almost of hurricane proportions" by the National Weather Service. They left a trail of flooded streets, damaged mobile homes, sunken boats and downed power lines.

— Howling winds along the New England coast were also of hurricane proportions. The temperatures went into a nosedive from the high 40s and turned the highways icy.

— A flash flood from a tributary of the Penobscot River swept through downtown Bangor, Maine, rushing over parked cars and into the basements of banks and businesses.

— Fifty-mile-an-hour winds drove blizzard snows in Connecticut.

Even Hawaii had a cold snap. The 53 degrees at Honolulu broke the record for the date.

Weather-prognosticating groundhogs — Punxsutawney Phil at Groundhog at Sun Prairie, Wis., and Babe, the official forecast of the Indianapolis Zoo — ventured out, saw their shadows and retreated hastily.

Chester Hodnicki, 57, of Chicopee, Mass., slipped and fell into a deep puddle of water when he left his home at 4 a.m. to start his car. He lay on the ground for about two hours before he was found by his wife.

"He was literally frozen to the ground," a spokesman said at Holyoke Hospital, where he was treated for frostbite.

High winds tore down power lines in many communities of the East and Midwest. More than 14,000 households and businesses were left without electricity in southeastern Pennsylvania. At least 5,000 customers of Western Massachusetts Electric Co. lost power. The Hartford Electric Light Co. said more than 5,000 of its customers were affected.

In the Detroit area, 13,000 customers of Consumers Power Co. were left in darkness and cold for three hours.

Twelve St. Louis policemen en route to Jefferson City to lobby for a pay increase were injured when their bus, stopped on snow-swept Interstate 70 near Wright City, Mo., because of a multiple-vehicle accident, was hit from behind by a tractor-trailer truck. None was injured seriously.

Two Contractors Defend Entertainment Of Officials

Washington (AP) — The presidents of two corporations with billions of dollars in government defense contracts told Congress Monday they were interested only in improving communications when they invited Pentagon officials to weekends at hunting lodges or Caribbean islands.

And the chairman of the Civil Service Commission testified that his acceptance of hospitality at a Rockwell International Corp. hunting lodge on Maryland's Eastern shore involved no conflict of interest because he had been invited by a long-time personal friend.

"There was no way in which I could help his company and there wasn't the slightest hint of that," said Commissioner Robert E. Hampton.

Thomas V. Jones, president of the Northrup Corp., and Robert Anderson, president of Rockwell, said their companies' hospitality was offered to government officials only to further goodwill and provide an informal channel for exchanging legitimate information and ironing out problems.

Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., said he remained suspicious of such arrangements. He said they appear to go "far beyond what is allowed by government policy and regulations" intended to maintain an arms length relationship between procurement officers and defense contractors.

During questioning, Anderson said that Rockwell either has now or has had in the recent past entertained visitors at a waterfowl hunting lodge in Maryland, a quail hunting lodge in Georgia, a country home owned by a Rockwell official at Farmington, Pa., and on the island of Bimini and on Cat Cay.

He said government officials were entertained at some of these facilities but that no list of visitors were kept.

He said he would attempt to reconstruct who was a guest at which facility, when they were there and how much the firm spent for the visits.

Anderson said that relatively little was spent on each guest.

He said the great bulk of entertainment costs consisted of a drink after work and/or meals.

Anderson acknowledged that Rockwell's tax department at least once tried to deduct such entertainment expenses from the firm's income tax but was told it was not allowable.

He said the charges were not included in the cost of government contracts because that practice is illegal.

Two months ago, he said, Rockwell quit entertaining government officials except in cases where there can be no question of ethics.

Anderson emphasized that his firm had no intention of influencing any of its government guests improperly.

Father's 30-Year Search For Son Ends Successfully

MIAMI (AP) — "We are going to be together as much as we can," says a 67-year-old Miami man whose 30-year search for the son he barely knew ended successfully with the help of federal officials.

Charles Mates, a mutual clerk at a Miami thoroughbred track, said he had been searching for his son, Charles Jr., 44, since they lost track of each other in 1946.

When his parents separated in the early 1930s, young Charles stayed with his father for several years. But when the elder man got tuberculosis in 1936 and moved to Florida, the child was sent to live with his mother.

Mates said he depended on his brother and sister to keep him informed about the boy. But when they died, he lost all contact with the child.

The situation was complicated by the fact that Mates changed his name from Matz after arriving in Florida.

"You see, when I first came down here, people used to call me 'Matzy,'" he said. "I resented it and so they started calling me 'Matesy.' Finally, I changed my name to Mates."

After decades of unsuccessful inquiries to relatives and friends, Matz turned to the FBI. But agents were unable to help. So he asked for assistance from the Social Security office in Miami. Officials there forwarded a letter that eventually reached Charles Jr. at his home in Rome, N.Y.

"The minute I got that letter," Charles Jr. said, "I got on the phone and when we heard each other's voice, we just started crying."

Mates said he already has made plans to visit his son and the daughter-in-law and two grandchildren he learned about only last week.

"After 35 years, you just don't quit this business," he said. "But come my next break, I plan to drive up to Utica where my son lives and meet the rest of the family."

Proponent Of Decontrol Wants House Showdown

Washington (UPI) — A proponent of removing federal controls from natural gas prices said Monday he will force a House showdown on the issue Tuesday, despite contentions only bad law will result.

Rep. Robert Krueger, D-Tex., told reporters that although there is a clamor for further delay, the issue has been debated for years, and now "a bill in the hand is worth two up in the air."

Krueger will ask the House to let him offer a long-term deregulation amendment to a pending bill which would allow only a short-term lifting of controls to meet emergency shortages this winter and next.

Krueger's proposal, along lines of legislation already approved by the Senate, has been bottled up in the Commerce Committee, whose chairman, Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., wanted to hold further hearings on it.

With the backing of Speaker Carl Albert, Krueger won House Rules Committee clearance to take his measure to the floor.

FBI Arrests Man In DeSersa Death

Pine Ridge, S.D. (UPI) — A 28-year-old Pine Ridge man was arrested Monday in connection with the weekend shooting death of Byron DeSersa, 28, near Wanblee, S.D.

Charged with first degree murder was Charles David Winters, who was arrested by FBI agents shortly before noon Monday in Pine Ridge.

DeSersa was shot to death in his car just outside Wanblee, where sporadic gunfire had been occurring throughout the day Saturday.

DeSersa was the son of a former reservation newspaper editor, Aaron DeSersa of Pine Ridge. During the 1975 Wounded Knee occupation, the elder DeSersa's home was firebombed in an incident linked with his active support of the American Indian Movement.

Bureau of Indian Affairs chief investigator Kenneth Sayers said in an interview from Pine Ridge that the situation on the massive reservation had calmed down from a tense weekend. He described the reservation Monday afternoon as being "fairly quiet."

Brezhnev Expresses Solidarity With MPLA

By The Associated Press
Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev issued on Monday a new expression of Kremlin solidarity with Popular Movement — MPLA — forces in Angola. At the same time, 40 Dutch mercenaries were reported ready to join the two factions fighting the MPLA, with hundreds more being recruited.

There were also reports that the MPLA was considering nationalization of the Cabinda oil field if Gulf Oil Co. of the United States does not resume production soon.

The reports, by British correspondents who interviewed MPLA Prime Minister Lopo do Nascimento, said the Angolans would develop their own oil if the American continue their "economic blockade."

Calling the MPLA the "legitimate government" of Angola, Brezhnev said Soviet solidarity "fully agrees with numerous decisions of the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity concerning problems of decolonization and abolition of racism and apartheid."

He did not mention Soviet aid to the MPLA — a subject of growing tension between him and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The Amsterdam daily De Telegraaf reported that 40 new mercenaries would leave this week to help the combined National Front and National Union — FNLA-UNITA — force. They include sharpshooters.

The contingent is among hundreds of West European mercenaries being recruited by a British organization called Security Advisory Services to fight in the former Portuguese colony on the African coast, De Telegraaf said.

A British diplomatic correspondent, Norman Kirkham of the Sunday Telegraph, earlier quoted sources as saying more than $20 million is to be spent on Western mercenaries for Angola. Most of it, Kirkham reported, will be U.S. money from the Central Intelligence Agency.

Nixon Told Hanoi He'd Consider Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department officials acknowledged Monday that former President Richard M. Nixon sent a memorandum to North Vietnamese leaders promising his administration would consider massive postwar rehabilitation assistance.

But these officials said the memorandum was sent after the signing of the Jan. 27, 1973, agreement in Paris to end the war in Vietnam and that the aid was not held out as an inducement to end the fighting.

This account supports Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's public statements at the time that there was only a general discussion of possible economic help with the North Vietnamese prior to the Paris agreement. The latest account was given to reporters after consultation with Kissinger, who was on the West Coast on a speaking trip.

The officials, who declined use of their names, said the possibility of aid was taken up by a joint U.S. and North Vietnamese economic commission from March 1973 until July of that year. The idea was dropped because of repeated violations by Hanoi of the Paris accord, the officials said.

At the White House, press secretary Ron Nessen said, "The whole issue became moot" because Hanoi violated the peace agreement "by starting the war up again and failing to give full accounting of Americans killed and missing in action in North Vietnam."

The subject arose when a group of congressmen who returned from Hanoi quoted North Vietnamese leaders as saying they were promised $3.25 billion in aid by Nixon in early January 1973 — before the Paris agreement was signed.

Group Suggests Split Of AT&T, Western Electric

Washington (UPI) — A Federal Communications Commission task force study made public Monday recommended that Congress force American Telephone and Telegraph Co. to divest itself of its wholly owned manufacturing and supply subsidiary, Western Electric.

The study also concluded AT&T overcharged long-distance telephone users by $1.6 billion in the years 1971-1975 and said they are entitled to refunds.

The recommendations were submitted to an administrative law judge for his consideration.

Edmondson, who was abducted from his home Thursday morning, was found dead later that afternoon by an Atlanta sanitation worker in the northwest section of the city.

During his long career as a vaudeville, radio and television comic, Edmondson was billed as the man who could spell any word in the English language backwards.

He entertained dignitaries at the White House and was a friend of several political figures including Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan.

Brezhnev Expresses Solidarity With MPLA

By The Associated Press

Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev issued on Monday a new expression of Kremlin solidarity with Popular Movement — MPLA — forces in Angola. At the same time, 40 Dutch mercenaries were reported ready to join the two factions fighting the MPLA, with hundreds more being recruited.

There were also reports that the MPLA was considering nationalization of the Cabinda oil field if Gulf Oil Co. of the United States does not resume production soon.

The reports, by British correspondents who interviewed MPLA Prime Minister Lope do Nascimento, said the Angolans would develop their own oil if the American continue their "economic blockade."

Calling the MPLA the "legitimate government" of Angola, Brezhnev said Soviet solidarity "fully agrees with numerous decisions of the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity concerning problems of decolonization and abolition of racism and apartheid."

Varmints Are A Cynical Lot

Ekalaka, Mont. (AP) — Either coyotes have turned to opera, or Montana's sonorous varmint callers have lost their touch.

Officials say the First Annual Montana State Varmint Callers Contest was a total failure. Not one of the 20 yelping contestants was able to coax a coyote, fox or bobcat from the bush, they said.

Event contestants took to the fields to croon the critters with esoteric tunes, but all returned empty handed and hoarse.

Exemption Hike To Aid Debtor

By BOB GUENNER
Star Staff Writer

Supporters of a bill raising the amount of wages exempt from garnishment (LB723) said Monday the bill could help lower the number of individual bankruptcies claimed annually.

Dave Piester, director of the Legal Aid Society of Lincoln, offered testimony at a Judiciary committee hearing in support of the bill sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler.

The bill would increase the amount of weekly wages exempt from garnishment for past-due debts from $65 to $92 (the minimum wage for a 40-hour week).

Piester said fear that garnishment can lead to termination of employment often causes many of those in debt beyond their means to file for bankruptcy.

In recent years, he said, creditors have gotten significant increases in interest rates allowed. Debtors have not gotten any corresponding benefits, he added.

LB723 would also allow single people certain exemptions on property previously reserved for heads of families.

Ron Miller, a Beatrice retailer, opposed the bill, saying it would force him to deny people credit.

No action was taken on that bill or on Sen. Douglas Bereuter's LB739 which would give the Legislature its own legal counsel to represent it in court actions and render opinions about bills.

Bereuter said the bill is aimed at solving the problem of attorney general's opinions being used on the floor of the Legislature under a particular measure under consideration. Bereuter said it's not aimed at any past or present attorney general.

The legislative counsel would be paid $27,500 and named by the Legislative Council for a six-year term.

Such an attorney would be able to specialize in constitutional questions and relieve some of growing number of legal opinions being requested of the State Department of Justice, Bereuter said.

Mental Commitment Bill Is Under Unicam Scrutiny

By United Press International
The Unicameral's Public Health and Welfare Committee began Monday a point-by-point review of a bill designed to put Nebraska's mental health involuntary commitment laws in compliance with a federal court decision handed down in Omaha last month.

Before the committee for public hearing was its own LB806. Its drafting began during last year's session in cooperation with the Nebraska Bar Association.

The association said even though drafted before last month's decision the bill is nearly identical to the terms of that decision.

The court decision dealt with the lack of procedures designed to protect the rights of the individual involved.

LB806, for which numerous amendments were offered, would first change the whole basis for involuntary commitments. It would change the current provision that says a person needs only to be mentally ill to be involuntary committed. The new requirement would limit involuntary commitments to persons who are dangerous in that they might harm others or themselves.

The county mental health board, now made up of physicians, would be replaced by a district court-appointed board composed of an attorney, a

Sen. Steve Fowler

Attorney Gen. Paul Douglas questioned how one attorney could have a better or broader knowledge of Nebraska constitutional law than his staff and how a legislative counsel would in any way relieve the number of requests for opinions from senators.

In other action, the committee failed to reach a consensus on Sen. Ernest Chambers' bill (LB702) to abolish the death penalty.

A minor bill, LB718, was advanced to general file, as was a bill hiking judges' salaries (LB697).

Three bills were killed: two dealing with child support payments (LB636 and 637) and one dealing with the reporting of child abuse cases (LB679).

Solons Disagree On Omaha Buses

By United Press International

There was no meeting of the minds among members of the Legislature's Education Committee Monday on an amendment to the state aid to schools bill that would help the Omaha school district pay for buses needed to implement court-ordered school integration.

But Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, committee chairman, said he remained optimistic a suitable compromise could be worked out among the members, a mix of rural and urban area lawmakers.

The aid bill, LB631, sponsored by Ralston Sen. Gerald Koch, would increase the $55 million current aid level by $15 million annually until it reaches 40% of the schools' operational costs.

There has been speculation enough Omaha senators could be persuaded to support the measure if it included an amendment to give the Omaha district some extra financial aid to buy more than $2 million worth of buses to carry out the court's integration mandate.

Falls Vote Short

Last year, Omaha lawmakers voted 6-5 for a similar bill, which came within one vote of going into the statutes on an override attempt of a gubernatorial veto.

During the committee's executive session Monday, it was obvious the rural lawmakers would not support an Omaha bus amendment that would siphon $2 million from the state aid fund.

Koch himself suggested that figure was too high and questioned the accuracy of an estimate the buses would cost $20,000 each. He said $12,000 would appear more to reflect cost of a bus.

$750,000 Asked

Koch asked the senators to consider giving Omaha $750,000 annually to help defray bus costs. He noted sparsely settled areas receive special consideration in school aid apportionment and the Omaha bus problem was deserving of comparable treatment.

Hearing Slated On College Role

The Legislature's study committee on post-secondary education will hold a public hearing in Lincoln Tuesday to discuss the role of private colleges and universities in Nebraska.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Callen Center at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly is chairman of the study unit. Another hearing on private colleges and universities is scheduled for Feb. 12 at Creighton University in Omaha.

Sen. Thomas Fitzgerald of Omaha said he had been told the Omaha district would arrive at a firm figure on bus costs Monday.

Lewis noted the original state aid bill, still on the books, calls for the state to appropriate $89 million annually. But he said the amount gets reduced when state spending priorities are set.

After Sen. George Burrows of Adams suggested the extra $15 million in the Koch bill be distributed on a "straight per pupil basis," Lewis said there was "no way" he could support such an amendment.

'Doesn't Work'

In the opinion of Sen. Walter George of Blair, the integration mandate means $7 million will have to be spent in Omaha "for something that doesn't work."

He said experience proved busing to achieve integration has failed and judges who issue mandates ought to read about the past experiences of cities in this regard before forcing it upon others.

Lewis said the committee will take another look at amendments to the bill Tuesday or next week.

Special Ed Repayment Is Advanced

The Legislature's Education Committee Monday advanced to the Legislature LB761, under which a school district would be reimbursed for 90% of excess costs of its previous year's special education programs for the handicapped.

The bill would also make the special programs available to those between 5 and 21 years of age, instead of 5 and 18, and would provide for reimbursement of initial diagnosis and evaluation of a child's needs.

Another section would establish a board which would hear appeals from a parent or guardian who believed his child was not in an appropriate educational program.

An amendment would also permit school districts to begin pre-school programs for the handicapped but they would not be eligible for reimbursement.

The committee also advanced LB757, which would make the fiscal year for all school districts uniform.

All-Day Sessions Begin Feb. 26

Speaker Jules Burch of Hartington advised Nebraska lawmakers Monday the Unicameral will go into all-day sessions Feb. 26.

By that time, all committees will have completed their public hearings, he said.

The Legislature has a 60-day session this year.

Reporters Not Banned From Floor

By The Associated Press

Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Utica fell three votes short Monday in an attempt to bar members of the news media from the floor of the Legislature.

Under his proposal, reporters would have to ask senators to step to the side of the chamber for interviews.

His proposed rule was supported 27-19, but fell three votes short of the 30 needed. The proposed rule would have allowed reporters to remain at their desks in the chamber.

"The very nature of the legislative process requires immediate access," said Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh. "The public needs to know immediately."

Guardsmen Bonuses For Enlisting Nixed

By The Associated Press

The Legislature voted 35-10 Monday to a bill to eliminate enlistment bonuses for national guardsmen.

The guard had already decided the program was too expensive and discontinued the bonuses. The passage of LB596 did not affect tuition credits for enlistments.

Passed on a vote of 38-4, LB515 allows local government officials to set the amount of dog license taxes.

A bill introduced after the Omaha tornado last year, LB613, finally gained final passage Monday. Passed on a vote of 46-0, it allows the state to receive federal aid when conducting disaster relief programs.

The Unicameral passed a bill to require that courts send notice of judgment by first class mail. LB425 passed on a vote of 43-0.

Savings and loan associations received expanded authority to make loans on leased property through the 39-0 passage of LB219.

The Legislature voted 45-0 to adopt LB584, which sets up a method for compromising death taxes with other states.

Two minor school bills were also passed by the Legislature. They change the dates for paying public school tuition and change the method for counting students. Senators passed LB521 44-0 and LB587 44-0.

The Legislature also passed eight bills to correct internal references in statutes. They were LB614-621.

Taxpayers Group Against Exon's Biennial Sessions

The Nebraska Tax Research Council, a lobbying group which calls itself a statewide taxpayer organization, said Monday it opposed Gov. J. J. Exon's call for a return to biennial legislative sessions.

In a prepared statement, George T. Wruck of Omaha, president of the group, said the council would support a move to limit the number of bills committees could introduce. But the council said it favored annual sessions.

The council said it did support the governor's proposal to meet "the real needs of a healthy growing Nebraska while recognizing reasonable fiscal restraint."

Wruck said the governor's proposed budget appears "to be a movement toward fulfillment of that goal with a possible reduction in the load of Nebraska's taxpayers."

Annexed Property Owner Has Choice

The Unicameral passed a bill Monday that allows Nebraska property owners to remain in rural school districts after their land has been annexed by a city.

Grand Island Sen. Ralph Kelly lost 16-25 in an effort to kill the bill. "I do not believe it to be good public policy to make this radical change at this time," Kelly said.

The bill, passed on a vote of 30-14, was introduced by Aurora

Sen. Maurice Kremer to stop the Grand Island School District from taking away the tax base of the surrounding rural high school district.

Under the provisions of LB833, the city school district and the rural school districts would begin negotiations after a city annexed rural land.

If they could not agree, voters in the rural grade school districts affected by the annexation would decide which school district the annexed territory would belong to.

"Obviously, those people in that district will not vote to give up its tax base," Kelly said.

The bill also allows rural high school districts to keep their school buildings even if they are annexed by a city.

Lawyer: Bill Could Cut Most Malpractice Suits

By United Press International

A Sidney attorney told a legislative committee Monday a bill to limit physician malpractice suits to cases involving only gross negligence would cut lawsuit numbers by three-fourths.

"This bill would result in the prevention of filing or immediate dismissal of three-fourths of the suits," Gerald Matzke told the Unicameral's Public Health and Welfare Committee while speaking for Sidney Sen. Robert Clark's LB880.

The goal of the bill is to cut down malpractice insurance rates and get other insurance companies into the malpractice insurance business in Nebraska. Only one company is now offering new policies.

Matzke said although it may sound ironic coming from him, an attorney, lawsuits are the cause of climbing insurance rates which he said will cut down on medical services, particularly in rural areas. He said two physicians in Scottsbluff have already cut back on services they offer in order to lower their rates and it could spread to other communities.

"Sooner or later we're going to have to face the fact that unless we cut down on the wholesale filing of lawsuits our services will be curtailed generally," the attorney said.

Some witnesses said they were afraid limiting suits to gross negligence cases — willful neglect on the part of a physician — would lower the quality of care.

Also heard by the committee was LB917 sponsored by Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City. It would provide emergency provisions the state insurance department could set in motion should insurance companies stop writing policies.

The bill would allow the department to create a special authority which would finance judgments through assessments against medical care personnel.

Workmen's Compensation Fund Is 'Mess'—DeCamp

State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said Monday the unemployment compensation fund situation is "a horrendous mess."

DeCamp said, "The great injustice in the unemployment insurance increase which just went out to employers is that the $37 million will be taxed from those who did not contribute to the deficit in the first place."

He was also critical of the unemployment insurance system "for being so lax for providing tax-free unemployment benefits to those who voluntarily quit their jobs."

He said the unemployment funds "are intended to help those in legitimate need get through a difficult period until they can again secure employment, and the fund should not be squandered away on the lazy who would take advantage of the system."

DeCamp said he will take a tough stance on unemployment insurance bills that have been introduced this session. He said he will ask State Labor Commissioner Gerald Chizek to recommend a penalty assessment against employers "whose situation helped create this deficit so that they share in the burden of tax increase along with the employers who did not run a deficit."

Taxpayers Fail To Claim $30 Federal Credit

Omaha (AP) — Taxpayers on almost 10% of the 1975 1040 income tax returns and 14% of the 1040A forms received so far by the Internal Revenue Service have failed to claim the $30 personal exemptions credit, an IRS spokesman says.

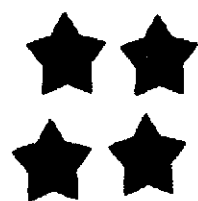

Everett Lowry, IRS district director for Nebraska says the provision applies only to taxpayers with income less than $8,000 in 1975.

Lowry said the special credit for personal exemptions directly decreases the tax otherwise due. Eligible taxpayers may subtract $30 for themselves, their spouses and each exemption other than those granted for age or blindness, he said.

Energy Savers To Meet Tonight

Midwest Energy Alternative, Inc. will conduct a meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Anderson branch public library at Fremont and Touzalin in Havelock.

According to Lincoln B. Justice of Martell, secretary of the organization, the group is made up of "concerned citizens, both producers and consumers, who are doing something now to change our wasteful energy systems." The organization helps citizens obtain information about energy conservation and alternate sources of energy from natural resources.

COUPON EXPIRES 9 Feb. 76

Mr. Rabin's Plan

By WILLIAM SAFIRE
WASHINGTON — Israel's premier, Yitzhak Rabin, came to America with more than a plea for the restoration of aid cuts. He came with specific ideas to blunt the Soviet-Syrian-PLO diplomatic offensive.
At the moment, the Soviet-backed Syrians are riding high. Reasons:
—With Egypt concentrating on regaining land and oil and rebuilding its economy, Syria has the extremist position to espouse.
—With Lebanon torn apart and Christians unwilling to aid their co-religionists, Syria has effectively moved in and made Lebanon the first client state's client state.
—With the U.S. cave-in last November to its idle threat not to renew the UN mandate, Syria surprised itself and the world by making it possible for extremist Palestinians to gain a forum at the UN Security Council.
The Arabs have been able to change the terms of the debate. No longer is "return of lands" their sole demand; the cry is now for establishment of a militant state so close to Israel as to make effective defense of the latter impossible.

Foolishly, U.S. policy has been mortgaged to Arab initiative: If extremist Palestinians will now pretend to recognize Israel's right to exist — which could be conveniently disavowed — the U.S. appears ready to lean on Israel to turn over lands that will create the second client state of a client state. And the Soviets stand ready to arm that state to its teeth.
That would be a good way to ensure the destruction of Israel. But tides turn; Arab unity and OPEC domination are becoming victims of their own success, delicious publicity of the U.N. feeds no hungry mouths; and fresh Israeli ideas are especially welcome in a U.S. election year.
Rabin understands this; he also knows that "forward movement" is desired and "intransigence" must be shown to come from the other side. So he is reported to have presented some ideas which the Ford White House and the State Department are mulling over.
Toward the Palestinian Refugee. Israel is ready to offer more than a cold shoulder. Next month, in both the Gaza Strip and the West Bank, genuinely free elections for municipal offices will be held by Palestinians; the Israelis hope that moderate Palestinian leaders will emerge who can build their popularity on achieving "return" of some land through Jordanian federation in preference to another generation of futile militancy.
Toward Syria. A hard line until reasonableness appears. If the Syrians again threaten to end the UN mandate in May, call their bluff: the Israelis believe they can handle a Syrian military threat. If the Syrians refuse to go to Geneva with the PLO seated as a precondition, let them stay home; the Egyptians are willing to negotiate in Geneva, with the subject of the Palestinians first on the agenda, which is acceptable to the Israelis.
Toward the U.N. Contempt. In this attitude public opinion in the U.S. and Israel is closely allied. As the Soviets press for more discussion of Palestinian statehood in a pro-Arab U.N. forum, the U.S. should press for broad Mideast discussion at neutral Geneva.
Toward Egypt. (units) Cooperation. Step-by-step diplomacy is working there, with generals on both sides meeting; this approaches what Rabin calls "something similar to peace."
Toward Jordan. A new look. At the Rabat conference, militant Arabs shunted Jordan aside. Long before that, the Israelis missed their chance to deal with Jordan on the Palestinian issue. And U.S. relations with King Hussein are somewhat strained today.
But Jordan can still be a key to peace in the Mideast. With quiet American urging, Jordan might be able to reassert itself in the Arab world. A federated state would solve many of the problems of all but the most militant of Palestinians; this is a negotiating route that too many diplomats have assumed to be closed for all time. As we have seen in the Mideast land talks, Arab leaders who can actually back from Israel are not so despised by the recipients as extremists would have us believe.

As it happens, Hussein is scheduled to make his annual private visit to Washington next month. If the Syrian-Soviet position won't budge, or if Lebanon absorbs Syria's energy; if Egypt keeps step-by-stepping; if North African Arabs are angry at each other about the Spanish Sahara — then perhaps Ford and Hussein will have something to talk about.
The nail-biting Americans who insisted that Israel risk its security last March in the Sinai are insisting that Israel embrace the Syrian-Soviet goal for Palestinians today.
Israel did not panic last March, and wound up with an acceptable deal; this year, she is well advised to patiently pursue new diplomatic ideas with an American ally that might yet regain its self-respect by a display of steadfastness.

Carter Key: Work

It's early yet — far too early to wager the life savings on the eventual winner of the Democratic presidential nomination derby — but Jimmy Carter's successes in the first few state caucuses can't be ignored.
Sure, Sen. Ed Muskie was ahead at this point four years ago and blew it in New Hampshire. Nobody, including Carter, is saying the former Georgia governor is the front-runner. He says, rather, "I've become kind of a target for the other candidates." He has also become a target for some elements in the media, and although some commentators and writers are correctly pointing out a few inconsistencies in Carter's positions and statements while a public figure, some are going overboard. When they can't prove inconsistencies they attempt to manufacture them. That is also one of the burdens a candidate carries when he starts to break ahead of the pack.
Considering he's relatively new to national political life, that he currently doesn't hold office, that his home region can be a drawback in a national campaign, Carter is nevertheless doing very well. He was first in the preliminary Iowa caucuses, a respectable second in Mississippi, which is Wallace country, and first again by a mile in the preliminary Maine caucuses.

Why? Perhaps because some people yearn for new blood and that yearning has translated into votes for Carter, who has never been to Washington to feed at the federal trough. And because he doesn't have anything else to do this year but campaign. He has been running for president for more than a year and his campaign was conspicuously successful in making contact with delegates to the Democratic midterm convention in Kansas City in December, 1974. Most of all he has been successful early because of organization and hard work. He is a full-time, industrious candidate and a well-organized one and that combination pays off in politics. It has been proved so often in recent years it would seem complacency should be a relatively rare condition. Still, some people who claim to be serious candidates are laying back and many professionals will still tell you that Hubert Humphrey can pick up the nomination without entering a primary.
Hubert won't tell you that, however. He might wish it would happen but he probably knows better.

Let It Snow

While Nebraska farmers worry about the lack of subsoil moisture, cast an anxious eye at the winter wheat and wonder if the predicted drought cycle will indeed dry up the already-thirsty soil and devastate the Nebraska economy, California farmers are beyond worrying.
The lack of winter rain in the nation's most productive agricultural state has already resulted in disaster. The range has dried up and young, underweight cattle are being sold in abnormally high volumes at abnormally low prices. All kinds of fiber, fruit, nut, vegetable and grain crops are suffering and losses are being counted in the hundreds of millions of dollars already. Irrigation water is in short supply. Ski resorts have closed down. Businesses which depend on the agriculture and recreation industries are likewise hurt.

Nebraskans are not strangers to cruel weather patterns. They have lived with drought before and will do so again, as will people of the land everywhere. While the extremes in weather conditions in this region of the country can produce despair, we know with normal conditions our land can produce and year in and year out that gives us hope.
The snows of the last few days were welcome. The 4 of an inch of moisture received in the Lincoln area was not enough, but it was something. It relieved some of the anxiety and was an upbeat kickoff to a usually drab month.

Doctors Lobbying Against Legislation?

Attention, IRS

Lincoln, Neb.
My most recent doctor bill showed an increase of 25 cents per office call. The bill carried a notation that the increase was to cover the increased cost of malpractice insurance.
Inclusion of such a statement on the bill is patently an attempt to use the bill to lobby for current legislation to limit malpractice actions and judgments — legislation which would at least partially shield doctors from financial responsibility for their actions.
I hope the Internal Revenue Service sees this for what it is — an attempt by doctors to lobby for personal-interest legislation — and refuses to allow those doctors to deduct the cost of such lobbying as a business expense.

IRATE PATIENT

Correction On LB 679

Kansas City, Kans.
If LB 679 is allowed to pass in its present form, as reported in the Jan. 27 Star, it is incorrect in terminology.
A court might allow medical treatment for the children of parents who are Christian Scientists, but not for the children of Christian Science practitioners, as reported.
A practitioner is one who devotes his full time to healing through prayer, much like doctors devote full time to medical practice. Practitioners are paid professionals. Many Christian Scientists as well as others who are not Christian Scientists or members of the church rely on and use the services of Christian Science practitioners.
GENE CHAPMAN

NFO Investigations

Lincoln, Neb.
Last week The Star ran a news release from Senator George Burrows. This contained accusations against the officers of the NFO. He called upon Attorney General Paul Douglas to investigate the NFO. At a debate in Beatrice last Friday night I asked Senator Burrows what the motive behind this irresponsible action was. He admitted it was to retaliate against the organization for taking disciplinary actions against some dissident members who happen to be his friends. He stated that he could do this because his word was trusted by the media and they would publicize his comments.
When a state senator or anyone else starts using the media in this manner, it is time the media started taking a closer look at the comments before giving them so much attention. Senator Burrows could have had the NFO investigated without bringing the media into it, and destroying confidence in the organization.
The news media is a valuable and powerful tool and can be used for good or to destroy, as it was used in this case. The NFO has been investigated by the IRS and by the SEC and it has survived. I have no doubt that if Paul Douglas decided to waste more of the taxpayers' money to prove them sound again, it will come out on top again. False accusations, regardless of how false, can hurt because they will put doubt in people's minds, and before the organization can move forward again, these doubts must be met.

SYLVIA ALBER

Away With Freud

North Platte, Neb.
This is the end perhaps of an age of youth for America and the beginning of a bright future. Old tastes and methods pass with the coming of the third hundred years. Out the door with them should go the remainder of the Freudian terminology still being used in the mental health associations of this state and many other areas of this country.
Through the introduction of brain wave research, Freud has become a story-teller, held on to only by those belligerent fellows who are too lazy to study the brain itself and see what is actually happening. This is odd perhaps, knowing full well that most common citizens who have privately studied Freudian concepts have found the man to have quite a sexual hang-up. In fact, these same citizens have found psychiatrists using Freudian terminology to be profoundly weird.

The Concorde Question

By TOM WICKER
PARIS — The pilot of an American airliner taxiing to its gate at Charles de Gaulle Airport spoke breathlessly on its public address system. "Look quickly to the left, ladies and gentlemen, and you will see the Concorde!"
And there it was, sleek and slender, but surprisingly small compared to a Boeing 747 looming nearby like a stranded whale — and to the storm that has blown up here on the question whether the United States will allow the supersonic craft to land at New York and Washington.
Later, a young American strutting along a Paris street stopped and stared at a travel-agency poster that showed the Concorde taking off. "That plane is really beautiful," he said, "even if it doesn't make much sense."
That is not far from what many proud Frenchmen seem to feel about the Concorde, which recently began flying from Paris to Rio de Janeiro for Air France and from London to Bahrain for British Overseas Airways. Even if the plane isn't economical, the French seem to think, its great — and therefore the world owes it a living.

The Concorde is a hot issue here, although no one is yet throwing rocks at the U.S. Embassy. But resident Americans can find themselves under challenge. The newspapers are full of the story and a satirical television program recently ran a skit in which an actor portraying Gerald Ford was cast as a Concorde navigator. If Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman rules against Concorde's landing in the United States, an angry reaction from the French people can be expected — although actual political or economic retaliation is not considered likely.
Whether the Concorde can even approach economic health without being able to tap the trans-North Atlantic market is the root issue, and there is no question but that the French and British aircraft industries will be hard hit unless they can go ahead with Concorde production. Since development was financed by the British and French governments jointly, at a cost of about $3 billion so far, taxpayers in the two countries have a substantial stake in the plane's success — although few of them ever would be able to fly on the Concorde at fares that probably will have to be set 20 to 30% above present first-class rates.
But the arguments most often heard here are less economic than emotional and nationalistic. If an American protests that the Concorde threatens the ozone layer and uses too much fuel, he's likely to get the disinclined response that no one pollutes or wastes oil more than the Americans do; so who are they to take a stand on such grounds against a great technological advance like supersonic flight? Besides, won't it be the Americans who taught the world to value "progress" more than anything, and who spread technology most relentlessly and at whatever costs is usually?
These accusations are true enough, and barely touch the underlying French suspicion — that American resistance to the Concorde is aimed primarily at killing it, so that the American aircraft industry can then leap in and develop its own SST, profiting from French-British technology and avoiding the mistakes built into the Concorde. The United States decision by formal congressional vote not to build an SST is considered reversible — and maybe even to have been taken so that the Americans could learn from the Concorde experience.

There is more to feed this suspicion than French cynicism and anti-Americanism. The American aircraft industry does oppose the Concorde, however quietly. And the fact that the supersonic liner is actually in service, flying at something like twice the speed of standard jets, poses a basic human question — such a technological advance being demonstrably possible, isn't mankind sooner or later going to make it, no matter what the United States does now? In fact, must not man take such a step, by his very nature as an aspiring creature?
The thoughtful Coleman may well have to reach that question, as he weighs the more obvious economic, political and environmental issues raised by the Concorde. If the United States rejects landing privileges for it — probably deeming this particular plane — will that be no more than the gesture of a modern King Canute, commanding the technological waves of the future to cease? Will someone else, perhaps the Soviets, reap the technological and commercial rewards of a pioneering British-French effort?
Or would such a decision, following the congressional vote against an American SST, carry on one of the first examples in human history of a nation deliberately placing social and environmental values ahead of "progress" and making a rational decision not to do technologically what it is capable of doing? If so, can any such decision be maintained against what has been assumed to be man's nature?

Mr. Rabin's Plan

By WILLIAM SAFIRE
WASHINGTON — Israel's premier, Yitzhak Rabin, came to America with more than a plea for the restoration of aid cuts. He came with specific ideas to blunt the Soviet-Syrian-PLO diplomatic offensive.

At the moment, the Soviet-backed Syrians are riding high. Reasons:

—With Egypt concentrating on regaining land and oil and rebuilding its economy, Syria has the extremist position to espouse.

—With Lebanon torn apart and Christians unwilling to aid their co-religionists, Syria has effectively moved in and made Lebanon the first client state's client state.

—With the U.S. cave-in last November to its idle threat not to renew the UN mandate, Syria surprised itself and the world by making it possible for extremist Palestinians to gain a forum at the UN Security Council.

The Arabs have been able to change the terms of the debate. No longer is "return of lands" their sole demand; the cry is now for establishment of a militant state so close to Israel as to make effective defense of the latter impossible.

Foolishly, U.S. policy has been mortgaged to Arab initiative: If extremist Palestinians will now pretend to recognize Israel's right to exist — which could be conveniently disavowed — the U.S. appears ready to lean on Israel to turn over lands that will create the second client state of a client state. And the Soviets stand ready to arm that state to its teeth.

That would be a good way to ensure the destruction of Israel. But tides turn; Arab unity and OPEC domination are becoming victims of their own success; delicious publicity of the U.N. feeds no hungry mouths; and fresh Israeli ideas are especially welcome in a U.S. election year.

Rabin understands this; he also knows that "forward movement" is desired and "intransigence" must be shown to come from the other side. So he is reported to have presented some ideas which the Ford White House and the State

Toward the Palestinian Refugees. Israel is ready to offer more than a cold shoulder. Next month, in both the Gaza Strip and the West Bank, genuinely free elections for municipal offices will be held by Palestinians; the Israelis hope that moderate Palestinian leaders will emerge who can build their popularity on achieving "return" of some land through Jordanian federation in preference to another generation of futile militancy.

Toward Syria. A hard line until reasonableness appears. If the Syrians again threaten to end the UN mandate in May, call their bluff; the Israelis believe they can handle a Syrian military threat. If the Syrians refuse to go to Geneva with the PLO seated as a precondition, let them stay home; the Egyptians are willing to negotiate in Geneva, with the subject of the Palestinians first on the agenda, which is acceptable to the Israelis.

Toward the U.N. Contempt. In this attitude public opinion in the U.S. and Israel is closely allied. As the Soviets press for more discussion of Palestinian statehood in a pro-Arab U.N. forum, the U.S. should press for broad Mideast discussion at neutral Geneva.

Toward Egypt. (units) Cooperation. Step-by-step diplomacy is working there, with generals on both sides meeting; this approaches what Rabin calls "something similar to peace."

Toward Jordan. A new look. At the Rabat conference, militant Arabs shunted Jordan aside. Long before that, the Israelis missed their chance to deal with Jordan on the Palestinian issue. And U.S. relations with King Hussein are somewhat strained today.

But Jordan can still be a key to peace in the Mideast. With quiet American urging, Jordan might be able to reassert itself in the Arab world. A federated state would solve many of the problems of all but the most militant of Palestinians; this is a negotiating route that too many diplomats have assumed to be closed for all time. As we have seen in the Mideast land talks, Arab leaders who can actually get back land from Israel are not so despised by the recipients as extremists would have us believe.

As it happens, Hussein is scheduled to make his annual private visit to Washington next month. If the Syrian-Soviet position won't budge, or if Lebanon absorbs Syria's energy; if Egypt keeps step-by-stepping; if North African Arabs are angry at each other about the Spanish Sahara — then perhaps Ford and Hussein will have something to talk about.

The nail-biting Americans who insisted that Israel risk its security last March in the Sinai are insisting that Israel embrace the Syrian-Soviet goal for Palestinians today.

Israel did not panic last March, and wound up with an acceptable deal; this year, she is well advised to patiently pursue new diplomatic ideas with an American ally that might yet regain its self-respect by a display of steadfastness.

Carter Key: Work

It's early yet — far too early to wager the life savings on the eventual winner of the Democratic presidential nomination derby — but Jimmy Carter's successes in the first few state caucuses can't be ignored.

Sure, Sen. Ed Muskie was ahead at this point four years ago and blew it in New Hampshire. Nobody, including Carter, is saying the former Georgia governor is the front-runner. He says, rather, "I've become kind of a target for the other candidates." He has also become a target for some elements in the media, and although some commentators and writers are correctly pointing out a few inconsistencies in Carter's positions and statements while a public figure, some are going overboard. When they can't prove inconsistencies they attempt to manufacture them. That is also one of the burdens a candidate carries when he starts to break ahead of the pack.

Considering he's relatively new to national political life, that he currently doesn't hold office, that his home region can be a drawback in a national campaign, Carter is nevertheless doing very well. He was first in the preliminary Iowa caucuses, a respectable second in Mississippi, which is Wallace country, and first again by a mile in the preliminary Maine caucuses.

Why? Perhaps because some people yearn for new blood and that yearning has translated into votes for Carter, who has never been to Washington to feed at the federal trough. And because he doesn't have anything else to do this year but campaign. He has been running for president for more than a year and his campaign was conspicuously successful in making contact with delegates to the Democratic midterm convention in Kansas City in December, 1974. Most of all he has been successful early because of organization and hard work. He is a full-time, industrious candidate and a well-organized one and that combination pays off in politics. It has been proved so often in recent years it would seem complacency should be a relatively rare condition. Still, some people who claim to be serious candidates are laying back and many professionals will still tell you that Hubert Humphrey can pick up the nomination without entering a primary.

Hubert won't tell you that, however. He might wish it would happen but he probably knows better.

Let It Snow

While Nebraska farmers worry about the lack of subsoil moisture, cast an anxious eye at the winter wheat and wonder if the predicted drought cycle will indeed dry up the already-thirsty soil and devastate the Nebraska economy, California farmers are beyond worrying.

The lack of winter rain in the nation's most productive agricultural state has already resulted in disaster. The range has dried up and young, underweight cattle are being sold in abnormally high volumes at abnormally low prices. All kinds of fiber, fruit, nut, vegetable and grain crops are suffering and losses are being counted in the hundreds of millions of dollars already. Irrigation water is in short supply. Ski resorts have closed down. Businesses which depend on the agriculture and recreation industries are likewise hurt.

Nebraskans are not strangers to cruel weather patterns. They have lived with drought before and will do so again, as will people of the land everywhere. While the extremes in weather conditions in this region of the country can produce despair, we know with normal conditions our land can produce and year in and year out that gives us hope.

The snows of the last few days were welcome. The 4 of an inch of moisture received in the Lincoln area was not enough, but it was something. It relieved some of the anxiety and was an upbeat kickoff to a usually drab month.

Doctors Lobbying Against Legislation?

Lincoln, Neb.

My most recent doctor bill showed an increase of 25 cents per office call. The bill carried a notation that the increase was to cover the increased cost of malpractice insurance.

Inclusion of such a statement on the bill is patently an attempt to use the bill to lobby for current legislation to limit malpractice actions and judgments — legislation which would at least partially shield doctors from financial responsibility for their actions.

I hope the Internal Revenue Service sees this for what it is — an attempt by doctors to lobby for personal-interest legislation — and refuses to allow those doctors to deduct the cost of such lobbying as a business expense.

NFO Investigations

Lincoln, Neb.

Last week The Star ran a news release from Senator George Burrows. This contained accusations against the officers of the NFO. He called upon Attorney General Paul Douglas to investigate the NFO. At a debate in Beatrice last Friday night I asked Senator Burrows what the motive behind this irresponsible action was. He admitted it was to retaliate against the organization for taking disciplinary actions against some dissident members who happen to be his friends. He stated that he could do this because his word was trusted by the media and they would publicize his comments.

When a state senator or anyone else starts using the media in this manner, it is time the media started taking a closer look at the comments before giving them so much attention. Senator Burrows could have had the NFO investigated without bringing the media into it, and destroying confidence in the organization.

The news media is a valuable and powerful tool and can be used for good or to destroy, as it was used in this case. The NFO has been investigated by the IRS and by the SEC and it has survived. I have no doubt that if Paul Douglas decided to waste more of the taxpayers' money to prove them sound again, it will come out on top again. False accusations, regardless of how false, can hurt because they will put doubt in people's minds, and before the organization can move forward again, these doubts must be met.

This is the end perhaps of an age of youth for America and the beginning of a bright future. Old tastes and methods pass with the coming of the third hundred years. Out the door with them should go the remainder of the Freudian terminology still being used in the mental health associations of this state and many other areas of this country.

Through the introduction of brain wave research, Freud has become a story-teller, held on to only by those belligerent fellows who are too lazy to study the brain itself and see what is actually happening. This is odd perhaps, knowing full well that most common citizens who have privately studied Freudian concepts have found the man to have quite a sexual hang-up. In fact, these same citizens have found psychiatrists using Freudian terminology to be profoundly weird.

Let us therefore go to our congressmen and demand better representation in the field of mental health. Those interested in self-study might go to the library and request information on Biofeedback, a pioneering science of the mind, which will some day provide a cure for every mental disorder.

The only contribution I can see that Sigmund Freud ever made to the field of knowledge is the astounding feat of winning the Nobel Prize without going to the Soviet Union, renting an apartment and writing a short story therein.

Park In Lowlands OKd For Beatrice

By DEAN TERRILL
 Southeast Nebraska Bureau
 Beatrice — A proposed floodway park for Big Blue River lowlands got an enthusiastic nod of approval from the City Council Monday night and was referred to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) with a request for 100% funding.

Reviewed by consulting engineer James Riskowski of Omaha, the plan basically calls for the evacuation of floodplain land in the city and its development for park use. The first phase of a three-year project, the only one involved in the current request, would cost an estimated $399,000.

City Clerk-Treasurer Terry Doyle noted that a similar project was rejected last year when presented in one package with a price tag of $787,000. The project would be under Title I of the Community Development Act.

Reminding that the city has experienced 62 floods since 1900, Riskowski said 28 deteriorated residences would be demolished.

Wallace's Right Leg Put In Cast

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace's paralyzed right leg was put in a plastic cast Monday night after a state trooper stumbled while carrying him on an airplane and accidentally dropped him, officials said.

"I want to explain that the people who put me on the plane dropped me," Wallace later told a campaign rally. "I pulled a ligament. I'm alright though and I hope you know that."

Earlier, Wallace aides had said the trooper had accidentally pulled on his leg after jostling him.

But Wallace, as he was wheeled out of a doctor's office, told reporters he was in "no pain."

Dr. W. Roland McArthur, an orthopedic surgeon who treated the governor for 90 minutes, said that Wallace had suffered strained ligaments in his right leg and the leg would have to remain immobile for at least one month.

"It normally takes four weeks for an injury of this type to heal," McArthur said. The cast appeared to reach from Wallace's ankle to about his knee.

Urban Repair Stressed By Hills

Washington (UPI) — Housing and Urban Development Secretary Carla Hills said Monday Americans can no longer afford the luxury of walking away from cities which wear out.

"We've been wasteful," she said. "We've literally walked away from cities. We've said, 'This old thing is tired and worn out — let's build a new market, a new church, a new school.'"

But now, she said, before calling in the demolition crews, people must look at used buildings to see "if they have any life expectancy remaining."

Interviewed after nearly two years in her post in her huge 10th floor office overlooking Washington's rehabilitated Southwest District, the 43-year-old Mrs. Hills also said:

—She has been surprised by the high quality of the bureaucracy in the government.

—She is working harder than ever before in her life.

Throughout the interview, Mrs. Hills stressed the need to rehabilitate existing housing, rather than follow old use-it-up, throw-it-out habits.

She cited Duluth, Minn., which took $400,000 in federal housing aid as a core, added $3.6 million in state and local public funds and, by convincing local investors to put up $7 for every $1 furnished by government, was able to undertake a $28 million rehabilitation project — a partnership between government and citizenry.

She said cities are learning that tax concessions can be powerful — and profitable — tools to induce builders to rehabilitate city housing rather than expanding suburbs deeper into the countryside.

Park In Lowlands OKd For Beatrice

 Southeast Nebraska Bureau
 Beatrice — A proposed floodway park for Big Blue River lowlands got an enthusiastic nod of approval from the City Council Monday night and was referred to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) with a request for 100% funding.
 Reviewed by consulting engineer James Riskowski of Omaha, the plan basically calls for the evacuation of floodplain land in the city and its development for park use. The first phase of a three-year project, the only one involved in the current request, would cost an estimated $399,000.
 City Clerk-Treasurer Terry Doyle noted that a similar project was rejected last year when presented in one package with a price tag of $787,000. The project would be under Title I of the Community Development Act.
 Reminding that the city has experienced 62 floods since 1900, Riskowski said 28 deteriorated residences would be demolished under the proposal. The 14 families and four individuals involved would be relocated at government expense.
 Approximately 14 businesses also would be subject to relocation.
 By their unanimous vote Monday, the councilmen reaffirmed top priority for the project, the same designation given HUD on last year's request. Sterling Kent, Chamber of Commerce executive vice president, spoke briefly in support of the plan.
 On another matter, Mayor Bob Sargent failed to get a second for his resolution urging the Legislature to reject a measure limiting the number of liquor licenses according to population. LB658 would permit only one license for each 1,500 residents within a county.
 Sargent vigorously argued that such a restriction "violates free enterprise," and would mean a loss in revenue to cities and school districts from license fees.
 "I won't cry over spilled beer, but feel I would be derelict in my duty if I didn't bring this to the council's attention," the mayor stated. The resolution was introduced by Councilman Allen Grell but got no second.
 Councilman Bill Johnson, noting that a similar restrictive bill was killed in legislative committee last year, said he also opposed the limitation but didn't feel councilmen should take a stand collectively.
 Jim Lennemann, local liquor store owner, said that licensees are entitled to protection because they are regulated more stringently than most other businesses. He also claimed that unlimited licensing will force some sellers "to break the law just to stay in business."
 The council also:
 —Passed a resolution vacating 16th St. and an alley in Oxmead Park Add.
 —Discussed possibility of new waterline for Glenover Add. at estimated cost of $6 per front foot.
 —Approved appointments of Richard Wilson as police patrolman and Linda Weyer as police cadet.
 —Set Feb. 16 for city employees' observance of Washington's birthday.
 —Took note that residential garbage collection rate will remain at $4 per month for the coming year.

A building being remodeled in Wahoo was completely destroyed by fire Monday night.
 The Wahoo Police Department said no monetary loss had yet been estimated and the cause of the fire in the building, formerly a laundromat, was unknown.

It's A Rolling Benefit

Englewood Cliffs, N.J. (UPI) — At least one New Jersey firm is helping employees get away from it all at minimal injury to the family budget, the Prentice-Hall publishing house reports. It says United Jersey Bank of Hackensack has two fully equipped motor homes available for employees and their families to use for up to six-day periods. All the employees pay for is the gas and a small daily rent.

Wallace's Right Leg Put In Cast

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace's paralyzed right leg was put in a plastic cast Monday night after a state trooper stumbled while carrying him on an airplane and accidentally dropped him, officials said.
 "I want to explain that the people who put me on the plane dropped me," Wallace later told a campaign rally. "I pulled a ligament. I'm alright though and I hope you know that."
 Earlier, Wallace aides had said the trooper had accidentally pulled on his leg after jostling him.
 But Wallace, as he was wheeled out of a doctor's office, told reporters he was in "no pain."
 Dr. W. Roland McArthur, an orthopedic surgeon who treated the governor for 90 minutes, said that Wallace had suffered strained ligaments in his right leg and the leg would have to remain immobile for at least one month.
 "It normally takes four weeks for an injury of this type to heal," McArthur said. The cast appeared to reach from Wallace's ankle to about his knee.

Urban Repair Stressed By Hills

Washington (UPI) — Housing and Urban Development Secretary Carla Hills said Monday Americans can no longer afford the luxury of walking away from cities which wear out.
 "We've been wasteful," she said. "We've literally walked away from cities. We've said, 'This old thing is tired and worn out — let's build a new market, a new church, a new school.'"
 But now, she said, before calling in the demolition crews, people must look at used buildings to see "if they have any life expectancy remaining."
 Interviewed after nearly two years in her post in her huge 10th floor office overlooking Washington's rehabilitated Southwest District, the 43-year-old Mrs. Hills also said:
 —She has been surprised by the high quality of the bureaucracy in the government.
 —She is working harder than ever before in her life.
 Throughout the interview, Mrs. Hills stressed the need to rehabilitate existing housing, rather than follow old use-it-up, throw-it-out habits.
 She cited Duluth, Minn., which took $400,000 in federal housing aid as a core, added $3.6 million in state and local public funds and, by convincing local investors to put up $7 for every $1 furnished by government, was able to undertake a $28 million rehabilitation project — a partnership between government and citizenry.
 She said cities are learning that tax concessions can be powerful — and profitable — tools to induce builders to rehabilitate city housing rather than expanding suburbs deeper into the countryside.

Double Justice Charged

Omaha (UPI) — Hess Dyas charged Monday that there exists in the United States a dual system of justice in which the well-to-do offender is treated more leniently than offenders from lower income groups.

In the first formally issued statement in his campaign for the 1976 democratic U.S. Senate nomination, Dyas said solutions to America's crime problem lie in innovative law enforcement and the restoration of respect for law through fair and equal administration of justice.

Dyas, who lives in Lincoln, came onto the home turf of his primary opponent, Mayor Edward Zornitsky, to visit four Omaha crime victims and issue his position statement on criminal justice.

Inconsistent practices in the prosecution of people who commit crimes greatly undermines respect for the law, Dyas said.

Dyas criticized the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, contending the federal agency has been "characterized by mismanagement, waste and a lack of planning."

Too much money has been spent for equipment, Dyas said. Not enough money has been spent for improvements in our court system and in our correctional system.

Harold Simpson

PSC Bid Announced By Simpson

Citing his decade of experience in the Legislature, Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln Monday formally filed as a Republican candidate for the Public Service Commission.

Simpson, 49, was first elected to the Unicameral in 1966. He is currently at mid-term and would continue to serve in the Legislature if he failed to win election to the commission.

Simpson is a candidate in southeast Nebraska's First District, which includes Lancaster County.

His 10 years of service in the Legislature, including four years on the Appropriations Committee, should especially qualify him for making rate decisions, Simpson said.

Campaign contributions will be limited to $100 from any single source, he said.

Stanley Considers Campaign

Former State Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley is considering challenging Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln for his seat in the Unicameral.

In an interview Monday, Stanley said a number of interests have approached him about running for the Unicameral.

"I'm considering it, but I haven't made up my mind," Stanley said.

If Stanley enters the race, he will be the third man in what promises to be a spirited campaign. Fowler, the Legislature's youngest member, already faces competition from Lincoln attorney Don Stenberg.

Stanley, who was forced to retire as commissioner of education in 1974 when he reached age 65, presently works as a lobbyist at the Legislature for vocational school interests.

"I'm having a good time in my present job," Stanley said.

Stanley was named commissioner of education in 1969 after the stormy term of Floyd Miller. The conflict between the State Department of Education and the State Board of Education which marked Miller's reign subsided under Stanley.

The legislative district Stanley lives in runs roughly through the mid-section of Lincoln from P St. on the north through the State Penal Complex on the south.

Fowler was elected to the post in 1972, defeating incumbent William Swanson.

A graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University, Stanley taught in the Lincoln Public Schools before joining the State Department of Education in 1941.

Party Seeks Signers

The move to form a Nebraska Libertarian Party is officially in progress, it was learned Monday.

Documents on file with the secretary of state's office indicate the drive to get the 4,513 signatures on petitions in order to form the new party officially began last Wednesday.

Those documents included a sample petition as well as a statement made by those in charge of the effort. Backers of the drive are Gale and Elizabeth Arch of Omaha.

The party has as its presidential candidate Robert MacBride, who lives in Virginia, edited three books and was instrumental in the creation of the NBC television series "Little House on the Prairie."

David Bergland is the vice presidential candidate. He is a part-time instructor at Florida's Western State College of Law.

Petitions with sufficient signatures on them must be filed by Feb. 10 in order to have the party officially recognized in the state.

Interviews Set For Delegates Backing Carter

Registered Nebraska Democrats wishing to run as national convention delegates committed to former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter are being urged to attend one of three public interviewing sessions, one in the three congressional districts, Feb. 14.

Persons unable to attend the sessions, which are slated in Omaha, Lincoln and Grand Island, should send a written application to the Carter delegate selection person in the state, Michaela Callahan of Lincoln, officials said.

The Lincoln meeting will be held at the Unitarian Church at 6300 A at 2 p.m.

Young will be responsible for the organization of 13 regional festivals and the two-week final festival here in April.

Mid-State Chief Eyes Nonenvironmental Unit

Grand Island (UPI) — The Mid-State Irrigation District's general manager said Monday he was seriously considering forming an association which would project the views of nonenvironmentalists to the public.

Don Schriener of Grand Island commented following a meeting in which the district's board, for all practical purposes, dissolved the district. The 28-year-old district was placed out of existence last November when voters rejected a controversial reclamation project.

Schriener said about $74,000 would be left over for distribution to school districts in Hall, Buffalo and Merrick Counties. The funds would be distributed to county treasurers on the basis of school district acreage rather than the amount of taxes paid by each school district.

Schriener said he understood the Kearney and Grand Island school districts, which would receive much less on an acreage basis, intended to drop a planned court action challenging the payment policy.

Schriener noted two federal issues pending and other actions by environmentalists as reasons for wanting to establish what he called a natural resources development and environmental association.

Schriener said the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has published a plan for endangered and threatened wildlife and plants which would effectively "style" future development on the Platte River between Silver Creek and Ogallala.

In addition, he noted the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' proposal to control all waterways declared navigable was still pending in Congress.

Schriener said he hoped all 17 western states could be involved in the association because "they have a great stake in resource and power development."

Schriener, who will be out of a job in about two weeks, said he hoped the association could be headquartered in Lincoln.

Winter Wheat Mostly Fair To Good

Winter wheat is in mostly fair to good condition over Nebraska with limited snow cover, the State Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics stated Monday in its monthly crop-weather report.

Of the counties reporting, 68% listed the wheat condition as fair, 7% poor, and the balance mostly good, the division said.

The south central district

reported mostly good wheat conditions, while other districts listed mostly fair conditions.

Winter rye is also said to be in mostly fair to good condition statewide.

Cattle on pastures and ranges continue to require supplemental feeding. As of last week, 45% of the corn and milo stalk fields were being pastured in some areas, stalk fields were nearly exhausted.

Slightly over half of the counties reporting indicated average hay supplies with the remainder mostly below average.

Precipitation during the past week including Monday's snow, follows:

Burlington	0.6 Lincoln	27
Chadron	0.1 Norfolk	47
Grand Island	0.3 Omaha	42

Cattle On Hand Total Down 5% From Last Year

Nebraska cattle producers had 5% fewer cattle on hand Jan. 1 than a year earlier and 12% less than two years ago, according to the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

A total of 6,550,000 cattle and calves were on hand the first of the year, the report released Monday said.

A breakdown of the total shows 2,290,000 cows, 112,000 bulls, 1,102,000 heifers, 500 pounds or more, 1,160,000 steers, and 1,186,000 calves on hand as of Jan. 1.

Calves born on Nebraska farms and ranches during 1975 totaled 2,190,000, down 5% from 1974 and about the same as the 1973 crop, the report added.

Milk Support Veto Rapped

President Ford's veto of the milk price support bill has drawn fire from Nebraska farmers. Union President Louis Wiebe, who described it as "an unfortunate act of political opportunism."

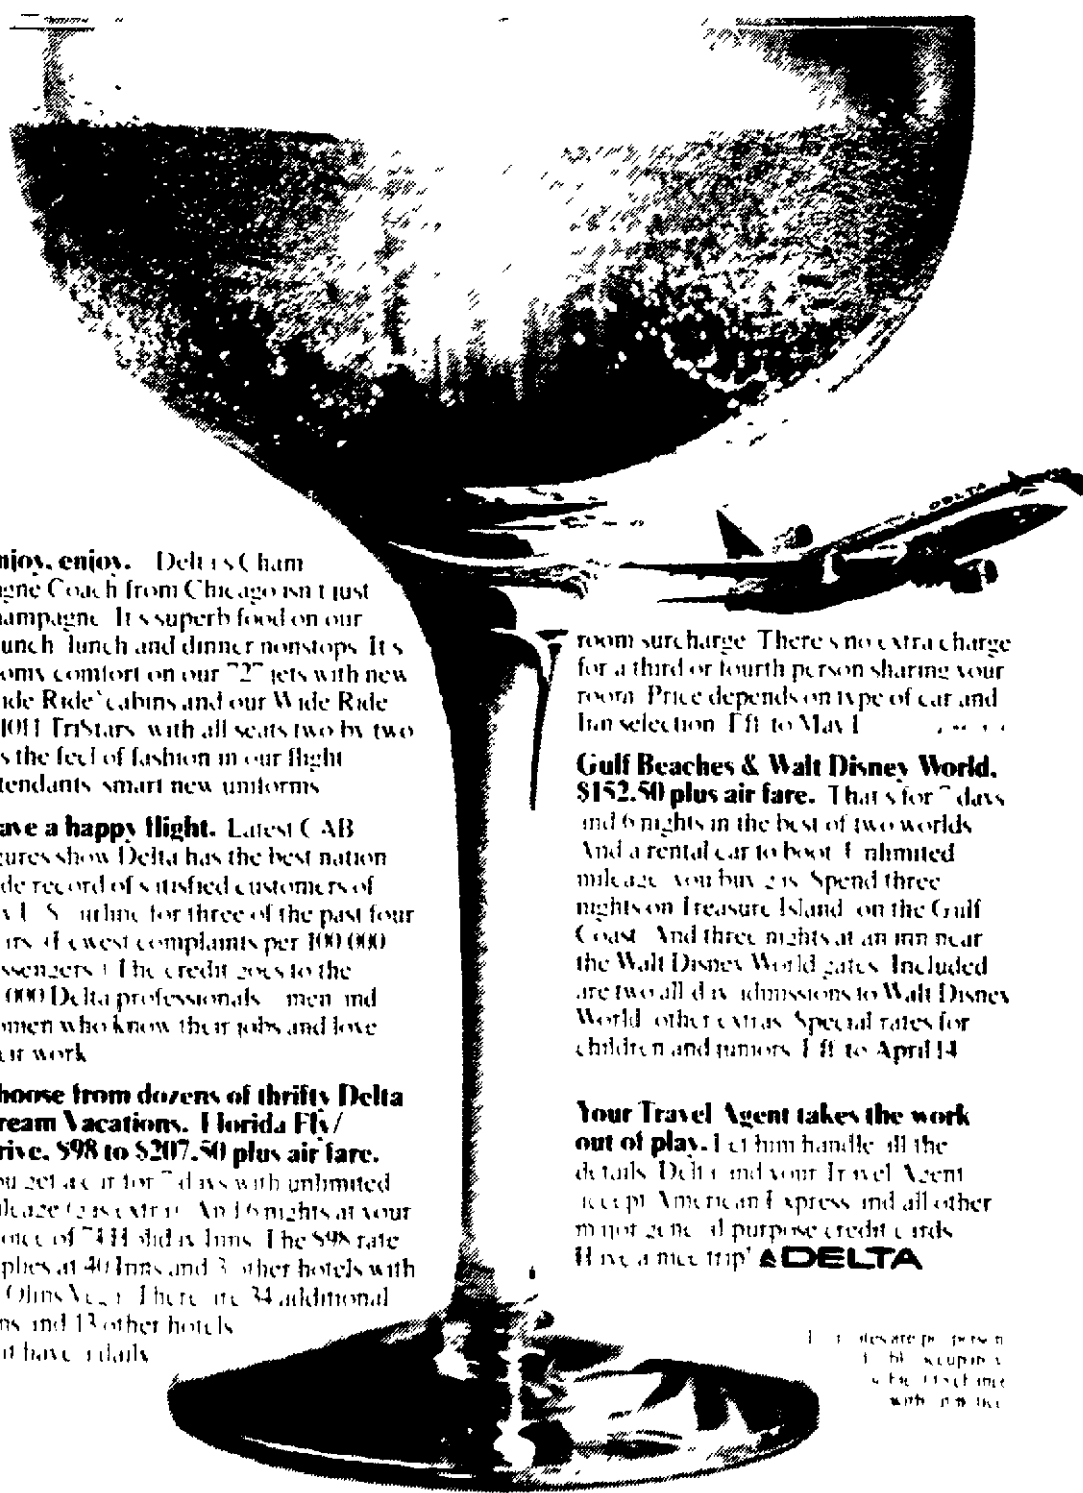

Wiebe blamed the decision on political advisers of the President who are counting the numbers of consumers and dairy farmers and have found dairy farmers greatly outnumbered. "President Ford apparently pictures his veto as a move for cheaper food. In reality it is an irresponsible sacrifice of consumers' long-term interests," he said.

Wiebe noted that milk production in the U.S. is now at its lowest level in 25 years. He predicted production will decline further as more farmers leave their dairy farms in despair.

Schriener said he understood the Kearney and Grand Island school districts, which would receive much less on an acreage basis, intended to drop a planned court action challenging the payment policy.

Schriener noted two federal issues pending and other actions by environmentalists as reasons for wanting to establish what he called a natural resources development and environmental association.

Schriener said the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has published a plan for endangered and threatened wildlife and plants which would effectively "style" future development on the Platte River between Silver Creek and Ogallala.

In addition, he noted the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' proposal to control all waterways declared navigable was still pending in Congress.

Schriener said he hoped all 17 western states could be involved in the association because "they have a great stake in resource and power development."

Schriener, who will be out of a job in about two weeks, said he hoped the association could be headquartered in Lincoln.

Winter Wheat Mostly Fair To Good

Winter wheat is in mostly fair to good condition over Nebraska with limited snow cover, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics stated Monday in its monthly crop-weather report.

Of the counties reporting, 68% listed the wheat condition as fair, 7% poor, and the balance mostly good, the division said.

The south central district

reported mostly good wheat conditions, while other districts listed mostly fair conditions.

Winter rye is also said to be in mostly fair to good condition statewide.

Cattle on pastures and ranges continue to require supplemental feeding. As of last week, 45% of the corn and milo stalk fields were being pastured. In some areas, stalk fields were nearly exhausted.

Slightly over half of the counties reporting indicated average hay supplies with the remainder mostly below average.

Precipitation during the past week including Monday's snow, follows:

Burlington ..... 0.6 Lincoln ..... 2.9
Chadron ..... 0.1 Norfolk ..... 4.7
Grand Island ..... 0.3 Omaha ..... 4.2

Cattle On Hand Total Down 5% From Last Year

Nebraska cattle producers had 5% fewer cattle on hand Jan. 1 than a year earlier and 12% less than two years ago, according to the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

A total of 6,550,000 cattle and calves were on hand the first of the year, the report released Monday said.

A breakdown of the total shows 2,290,000 cows, 112,000 bulls, 1,102,000 heifers 500 pounds or more, 1,160,000 steers, and 1,886,000 calves on hand as of Jan. 1.

Calves born on Nebraska farms and ranches during 1975 totaled 2,190,000, down 5% from 1974 and about the same as the 1973 crop, the report added.

School Licensing, Bus Rules To Be Decided

The State Board of Education will be asked to approve two sets of rules Friday, one on licensure of privately owned Nebraska schools the other on minimum standards governing school transportation vehicles.

The meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in the State Education Department at 233 S. 10th. The night before, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday the board will convene a work session to discuss "Project Equality in Education."

The project aims to attain equality among Nebraska school programs and financing and allow parents of Class I districts (elementary only) to vote on school board members in districts with secondary programs their children will attend.

Proposed by Lexington board member Marilyn Fowler, the board-approved equality project gears up the State Reorganization Committee, to study how Class I districts can merge with other nearby high schools.

A reorganization panel report is scheduled at the work session, plus another from the Special Advisory Committee for the Deaf.

At the formal meeting Friday, action is scheduled on Rule 41, for licensure of proprietary schools including correspondence, business, trade and technical, and on Rule 32, which would give private operators of school buses a compliance time extension.

The board will hear reports on assessment results regarding statewide educational needs, special education payments, handicapped state plan, metric education and school district reorganization.

Board approval will be sought for instructional television contracts for art sculptures, primary art, elementary literature and health education projects. Two vocational education proposals will be up for board okay.

Youth Charged In Sex Assault On 13-Year-Old

An 18-year-old Lincoln youth was charged with first degree sexual assault Monday in connection with an incident in which a 13-year-old girl said a man forced a bottle into her vagina.

The girl said she knew the man slightly and agreed to go to his house and listen to records. She said the man attacked her in the home on Jan. 21, but she did not report it for several days because of threats the man made.

Charged was Terry Dale Lomack, 18, of 326 S. 26th. A preliminary hearing in the case will be set on Feb. 17. Bond was set at $5,000.

No Action Taken On Regents Motion

The Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations has not yet taken action on the University of Nebraska Regents motion for rehearing in the collective bargaining case for Lincoln campus faculty a court spokesman said Monday.

A UNL faculty election on Feb. 16 will determine whether collective bargaining should be established and whether the American Association of University Professors UNL chapter should be the bargaining agent.

Meanwhile, Ned S. Hedges, UNL assistant vice chancellor for academic affairs, is distributing a pamphlet titled "Academic Unions, Universities and You: Answers to the Questions about Academic Collective Bargaining Often Asked by Members of the Faculty."

Dr. Hedges designated to provide collective bargaining information to the university community, is sending the pamphlet to all academic and administrative staff members. It is designed to respond to basic questions and refers to academic collective bargaining activities on all NU campuses.

A similar pamphlet, designed for application to collective bargaining activities of non-academic staff members, is being prepared for later distribution.

Trucking Subject To Rules, Fees

By JOANNE FARRIS
A READER WRITES: "I was reading a letter in your column about trucks. I have driven and owned trucks for 15 years. I have found that most of the letters and complaints made by people are by those who don't have the slightest idea what the rules and regulations governing trucks are. I am the first to admit that we have some very poor drivers in our profession. I am also one of the first to complain when I see one of these drivers. They jeopardize my safety on the road as much as they do the motoring public. We also have some of the best drivers and the best experienced drivers. "Everybody talks about us shortening the lives of road beds they pay for. If it wasn't for the road use tax paid by trucks the American people wouldn't have highways to run on. This is a proven fact. The vehicles we drive are built better and safer than the automobile. They are subject to safety inspections every time we cross a scale. "The drivers of these trucks are required to have a physical. They are required to pass a drivers test and a DOT written exam before they ever climb behind the wheel. The motoring public can put a trailer behind their car and go anywhere they want and half of these people are not capable of driving a car on the interstate highway system. "I run a truck from Indiana to the West Coast. The gross weight allowed is 73,280 pounds. "Congress has tried to pass higher weights for trucks. I hope this doesn't pass and most truckers feel the same. I also feel these weights would make trucking unsafe due to brakes. "The 55-mph speed limit is ridiculous. It doesn't conserve fuel and I can prove this as far as the trucks are concerned. My truck at 55 mph gets three miles per gallon. From 60 to 65 mph it gets four miles per gallon. I think that there should be a higher speed limit and stricter regulations concerning drivers and vehicles. People should know how to drive on interstate highways. "COMMENT: This is one of a number of letters I received from truckers in response to the reader who wrote in about speed and big trucks.

Each letter I received underscore the fact that most of us are not aware of the magnitude of the contribution truckers make to our highways through their truck user fees, which run from $3,500 to $8,000 per unit. These men are all concerned about their undeserved bad image, and I appreciate the fact that they took the time to write. As a truck dispatcher from Port Deposit, Md., put it: "Trucks move fast because customers want their freight fast. In this depressed economy customers want service, and more than anything else that is what today's transportation industry offers... never forget an old axiom, 'If you've got it, a truck brought it.' " (c) 1976, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Slow Down—Speed Traps Ahead

Lincoln police have begun announcing the locations of radar traps. But before you hit the accelerator, remember that only the locations of two of the seven radar "speed guns" in use by police are known. The other five speed guns, radar speed clocking devices which can be used without setting up, are being carried by cruiser officers on routine patrol.

If police spot a speeder, they won't hesitate to clock him, according to Inspector Dean Leitner, head of the police uniform division.

The locations of the other two speed guns are fixed in advance and officers assigned to that area are ordered to give this duty priority during the assigned time.

Leitner said the radar sites are selected on the basis of citizen complaints and frequency of accidents.

The objective of the sites, Leitner said, "is to slow traffic, that's all, not to catch anyone," and police have decided that objective will be achieved just as well if the sites are known.

Radar spots may not always be staffed during announced times. Leitner noted that officers may be called away from the radar post in response to a nearby emergency.

Radar locations slated for a coming week will be listed in the Sunday Journal-Star. Locations for the rest of the week are:

Tuesday: 6:30 a.m.-3 p.m., 13th and Saratoga, Haystack and 65th, 3 p.m.-11 p.m., 60th and Cornhusker, Terminal Rd., 11 p.m., Vine from 40th to 48th, 17th and Nebraska Hwy.

Campaign Fund For Rep. Thone Now At $32,646

The Thone for Congress Committee Monday reported that it has $32,646 on hand for Congressman Charles Thone's 1976 campaign for re-election.

That is about one-fourth of the amount which the committee plans to raise for Thone's primary and general election campaigns, according to Lee Herman of Wayne, chairman.

The goal is to obtain contributions from at least 2,500 persons in the First Congressional District.

In 1975, the committee raised $46,159 in contributions from 1,374 individuals. The average gift amounted to $33.59.

The committee spent $13,512.97, with the largest expenditures for printing and postage.

Harris Backers Schedule Meet

Supporters of Fred Harris' presidential candidacy will hold a meeting Sunday to nominate delegates from the First Congressional District to the 1976 National Democratic Convention.

The meeting is scheduled for 3 p.m. at the Unitarian Church, 6300 A St., and is open to anyone interested in Harris' campaign.

Two Sentenced In Assault Case

Two men were sentenced to 60 days in jail Monday after beating a man with fists and with a board with a nail protruding from it.

The victim, Thomas Blackbear, 25, was released Monday after being hospitalized at Lincoln General Sunday afternoon. Police said he sustained cuts, bruises and puncture wounds to the legs and chest.

Vincent Whitemagpie, 22, and Aiden Whitemagpie, 18, pleaded guilty in Lincoln Municipal Court to a charge of assault in connection with the incident.

Schuyler Man Is Chairman

Paul Johnston of Schuyler, executive secretary-treasurer of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association, has been named chairman of the Chemicals, Additives and Medications committee of Livestock Conservation, Inc.

The committee is one of 14 standing committees which will participate in LCI's annual meeting May 18-20 at St. Paul, Minn.

Dr. Robert D. Glock of Iowa State University, a native Nebraskan and graduate of the University of Nebraska, was named co-chairman with Keith E. Myers of Grundy Center, Iowa, of the Swine Dysentery Committee.

Back-To-Lander Finding More Than Address

Washington (UPI) — Swapping an urban for a rural life-style involves more than just changing your address.

Many modern-day pioneers find their dreams of a better way of life change to disappointment and frustration.

That doesn't have to happen, according to the U.S. Agriculture Department. Check on satisfactory employment, housing, transportation, medical services, schools, government services and local development trends.

Many prospective residents can write to mayors or chambers of commerce for information about communities in which they're interested.

Girl Scout Council Elects Directors, Gives Honors

Five people were elected Saturday to the Homestead Girl Scout Council board of directors.

New board members are public relations chairman Jan Burch, Bob Grimit, Dennis McDonnell and Elizabeth Platt, all of Lincoln, and Kathleen Duey of Falls City.

Named to the nominating committee were Kathryn Ashby of Geneva, Mrs. Duey and Nancy Weesner.

JoAnn Clinefelter was presented a 25-year pin at the council's annual meeting.

Betty Primeaus of Carlsbad, N.M., Mary Wilson of Columbus, Ohio, and Lincolmites Ruth Jewell, Brooks Sasse, Sandra Sasse and Gloria Viessman, were honored for 20 years of service. June Arnold and Verna Tubbs, both of Beatrice, and Bernice Ames of Wymore, received 15-year pins.

Cited for 10 years of service were Marge Rapp, Rose Marie

Hier and Renee Kennedy, all of Crete; Judy McReynolds of Ashland, Donna Shew of Beatrice and Linda Franssen, Kathy Grant, Barbar Waline, Jeanne Vannorsdall, Virlene Grafelman, Karen Janovy and Geri Gettman, all of Lincoln.

Also honored were council trainers Marian Mesner of Ceresco, Rose Ann Foster of Roca and Norma Hansen, Lois Johnsgard, Mrs. Burch, Alyce Dodds, Judy Welch, LaDeane Jha, Karen Hunter and Irene Pipan, all of Lincoln.

The Homestead Girl Scout Council is made up of 3,253 Girl Scouts and 845 adult leaders in the 13 southeast Nebraska counties.

In 1975, council expenses totaled $124,000, with troop services and outdoor programs accounting for 53% of the total, according to finance chairman Larry Arth.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplante

San Francisco — We can't let Chinese New Year pass without a few inscrutable remarks: "Gung Hay Fat Choy!" Happy New Year!

It is the Year of the Dragon. Babies born in this year will grow up to be fortunate cookies. They will do well in business. Prosperity will follow them all the years of their lives.

They are bearded with the opposite sex. "Gung Hay Fat Choy!" for that. We have left the Year of the Rabbit. A nice enough sort if you don't mind eating carrots three times a day.

The Dragon is a magnificent fellow. In Hong Kong this year, the line of parade follows a route where pedestrians cross through a subway.

The police will stop traffic so the parade Dragon can cross the street. It is bad joss for a Dragon to go underground. He may decide to stay there.

Several roads in China go around hills where Dragons are known to be sleeping underground. A Dragon awakened is in a nasty mood — until he has his coffee anyway. Let sleeping Dragons lie say the Chinese.

(I suppose you won't walk underneath a ladder. What a superstitious person you are!)

☆ ☆ ☆ This is a good year for politics. Nothing outstanding yet that a writer can get his teeth into. President Ford fell down on skis. That's about all.

I looked up some clips on Nelson Rockefeller who was a breezy candidate when he ran in New York.

He was making a speech in Times Square when somebody said: "Do you want to eat a blintz?"

This was a great test: Was Rockefeller a real New Yorker or a phony?

"Bring on the blintz!" he said.

☆ ☆ ☆ Mr. Rockefeller polished off the blintz so neatly you'd never know he wasn't born on the lower East Side of Manhattan.

When he finished he made a short speech: "I like blintzes!" The crowd cried: "Hooray for Rocky!"

We could use more of that glamorous stuff. Once I met a congressman in the Philippines.

He told me: "I come from the Igorot district and when I visit they give me a banquet. The best thing you can serve at an Igorot banquet is dog."

He couldn't stand dog fricassee but he had to eat it.

When he visited the United States he went to Hollywood. He had his picture taken with a famous movie dog, Rin-tin-tin.

The picture was published in the Philippines.

He said: "My Igorot constituency was delighted. They thought I was posing with the night's dinner."

☆☆☆ In Chinatown there are many banquets at this time of the Dragon Year. These are not to be elected. They are social affairs. Give the giver big face. Status as a jolly good fellow.

There are big family banquets and big business banquets.

The parade Dragon has been lengthened this year — something like a stretch DC-8 airplane. It's a grand year beginning. Make the most of it. Gung Hay Fat Choy!

Trucking Subject To Rules, Fees

By JOANNE FARRIS
A READER WRITES: "I was reading a letter in your column about trucks. I have driven and owned trucks for 15 years. I have found that most of the letters and complaints made by people are by those who don't have the slightest idea what the rules and regulations governing trucks are. I am the first to admit that we have some very poor drivers in our profession. I am also one of the first to complain when I see one of these drivers. They jeopardize my safety on the road as much as they do the motoring public. We also have some of the best drivers and the best experienced drivers. "Everybody talks about shortening the lives of road beds they pay for. If it wasn't for the road use tax paid by trucks the American people wouldn't have highways to run on. This is a proven fact. The vehicles we drive are built better and safer than the automobile. They are subject to safety inspections every time we cross a scale. "The drivers of these trucks are required to have a physical. They are required to pass a drivers test and a DOT written exam before they ever climb behind the wheel. The motoring public can put a trailer behind their car and go anywhere they want and half of these people are not capable of driving a car on the interstate highway system. "I run a truck from Indiana to the West Coast. The gross weight allowed is 73,280 pounds. "Congress has tried to pass higher weights for trucks. I hope this doesn't pass and most truckers feel the same. I also feel these weights would make trucking unsafe due to brakes. "The 55-mph speed limit is ridiculous. It doesn't conserve fuel and I can prove this as far as the trucks are concerned. My truck at 55 mph gets three miles per gallon. From 60 to 65 mph it gets four miles per gallon. I think that there should be a higher speed limit and stricter regulations concerning drivers and vehicles. People should know how to drive on interstate highways." COMMENT: This is one of a number of letters I received from truckers in response to the reader who wrote in about speed and big trucks.

Slow Down—Speed Traps Ahead

Lincoln police have begun announcing the locations of radar traps. But before you hit the accelerator, remember that only the locations of two of the seven radar "speed guns" in use by police are known. The other five speed guns, radar speed clocking devices which can be used without setting up, are being carried by cruiser officers on routine patrol. If police spot a speeder, they won't hesitate to clock him, according to Inspector Dean Leitner, head of the police uniform division. The locations of the other two speed guns are fixed in advance and officers assigned to that area are ordered to give this duty priority during the assigned time. Leitner said the radar sites are selected on the basis of citizen complaints and frequency of accidents. The objective of the sites, Leitner said, "is to slow traffic, that's all, not to catch anyone," and police have decided that objective will be achieved just as well if the sites are known. Radar spots may not always be staffed during announced times. Leitner noted that officers may be called away from the radar post in response to a nearby emergency.

Schuyler Man Is Chairman

Paul Johnston of Schuyler, executive secretary-treasurer of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association, has been named chairman of the Chemicals, Additives and Medications committee of Livestock Conservation, Inc. The committee is one of 14 standing committees which will participate in LCI's annual meeting May 18-20 at St. Paul, Minn. Dr. Robert D. Glock of Iowa State University, a native Nebraskan and graduate of the University of Nebraska, was named co-chairman with Keith E. Myers of Grundy Center, Iowa, of the Swine Dysentery Committee.

Back-To-Lander Finding More Than Address

Washington (UPI) — Swapping an urban for a rural life-style involves more than just changing your address. Many modern-day pioneers find their dreams of a better way of life change to disappointment and frustration. That doesn't have to happen, according to the U.S. Agriculture Department. Check on satisfactory employment, housing, transportation, medical services, schools, government services and local development trends. Many prospective residents can write to mayors or chambers of commerce for information about communities in which they're interested.

Girl Scout Council Elects Directors, Gives Honors

Five people were elected Saturday to the Homestead Girl Scout Council board of directors. New board members are public relations chairman Jan Burch, Bob Grimit, Dennis McDonnell and Elizabeth Platt, all of Lincoln, and Kathleen Duey of Falls City. Named to the nominating committee were Kathryn Ashby of Geneva, Mrs. Duey and Nancy Weesner. JoAnn Clinefelter was presented a 25-year pin at the council's annual meeting. Betty Primeaus of Carlsbad, N.M., Mary Wilson of Columbus, Ohio, and Lincolinites Ruth Jewell, Brooks Sasse, Sandra Sasse and Gloria Viessman, were honored for 20 years of service. June Arnold and Verna Tubbs, both of Beatrice, and Bernice Ames of Wymore, received 15-year pins. Cited for 10 years of service were Marge Rapp, Rose Marie

Hier and Renee Kennedy, all of Crete; Judy McReynolds of Ashland, Donna Shew of Beatrice and Linda Franssen, Kathy Grant, Barbara Waline, Jeanne Vannorsdall, Virlene Grafelman, Karen Janovy and Geri Gettman, all of Lincoln. Also honored were council trainers Marian Mesner of Ceresco, Rose Ann Foster of Roca and Norma Hansen, Lois Johnsgard, Mrs. Burch, Alyce Dodds, Judy Welch, LaDeane Jha, Karen Hunter and Irene Pipan, all of Lincoln. The Homestead Girl Scout Council is made up of 3,253 Girl Scouts and 845 adult leaders in the 13 southeast Nebraska counties. In 1975, council expenses totaled $124,000, with troop services and outdoor programs accounting for 53% of the total, according to finance chairman Larry Arth.

Campaign Fund For Rep. Thone Now At $32,646

The Thone for Congress Committee Monday reported that it has $32,646 on hand for Congressman Charles Thone's 1976 campaign for re-election. That is about one-fourth of the amount which the committee plans to raise for Thone's primary and general election campaigns, according to Lee Herman of Wayne, chairman. The goal is to obtain contributions from at least 2,500 persons in the First Congressional District. In 1975, the committee raised $46,159 in contributions from 1,374 individuals. The average gift amounted to $33.59. The committee spent $13,512.97, with the largest expenditures for printing and postage.

Harris Backers Schedule Meet

Supporters of Fred Harris' presidential candidacy will hold a meeting Sunday to nominate delegates from the First Congressional District to the 1976 National Democratic Convention. The meeting is scheduled for 3 p.m. at the Unitarian Church, 6300 A St., and is open to anyone interested in Harris' campaign.

Two Sentenced In Assault Case

Two men were sentenced to 60 days in jail Monday after beating a man with fists and with a board with a nail protruding from it. The victim, Thomas Blackbear, 25, was released Monday after being hospitalized at Lincoln General Sunday afternoon. Police said he sustained cuts, bruises and puncture wounds to the legs and chest. Vincent Whitemagpie, 22, and Alden Whitemagpie, 18, pleaded guilty in Lincoln Municipal Court to a charge of assault in connection with the incident.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplaine

San Francisco — We can't let Chinese New Year pass without a few inscrutable remarks: "Gung Hay Fat Choy!" Happy New Year! It is the Year of the Dragon. Babies born in this year will grow up to be fortunate cookies. They will do well in business. Prosperity will follow them all the years of their lives. They are bearcats with the opposite sex. "Gung Hay Fat Choy!" for that. We have left the Year of the Rabbit. A nice enough sort if you don't mind eating carrots three times a day. The Dragon is a magnificent fellow. In Hong Kong this year, the line of parade follows a route where pedestrians cross through a subway. The police will stop traffic so the parade Dragon can cross the street. It is bad joss for a Dragon to go underground. He may decide to stay there. Several roads in China go around hills where Dragons are known to be sleeping underground. A Dragon awakened is in a nasty mood — until he has his coffee away. Let sleeping Dragons lie say the Chinese. (I suppose you won't walk underneath a ladder. What a superstitious person you are!) ☆ ☆ ☆ This is a good year for politics. Nothing outstanding yet that a writer can get his teeth into. President Ford fell down on skis. That's about all. I looked up some clips on Nelson Rockefeller who was a breezy candidate when he ran in New York. He was making a speech in Times Square when somebody said: "Do you want to eat a blintz?" This was a great test: Was Rockefeller a real New Yorker or a phony? "Bring on the blintz!" he said. ☆ ☆ ☆ Mr. Rockefeller polished off the blintz so neatly you'd never know he wasn't born on the lower East Side of Manhattan.

When he finished he made a short speech: "I like blintzes!" The crowd cried: "Hooray for Rocky!" We could use more of that glamorous stuff. Once I met a congressman in the Philippines. Ed Board's Ear Open To Citizens

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Pearl Goldenstein got to the heart of public misunderstanding of the Lincoln Board of Education.

As the board was debating merits of personal-social growth practices and endorsing their use in the public schools, Mrs. Goldenstein explained:

"We don't run the schools."

But by setting policy, she said, "we accept the responsibility" for the programs that teachers must be trusted to carry out properly.

"We need to show our faith in the staff and teachers," Mrs. Goldenstein declared, addressing a semi-hostile public audience including some who expected immediate board redress for their complaints.

Undermine Administrators

Board member T. E. Dewey also addressed the operating-vs.-governing perceptions. He said if each member were to study in detail each program the school offers, and rule on each operational point for classroom use, that "would be undermining the administration who we have hired to do the job for us."

Board policy dictates that it may never act on an agenda item the first time it's brought up before the public; such a matter must be referred to staff for recommendations on final action later. Personal-social growth was no exception, being allowed a two-week incubation period.

The board may — and does — stretch out study periods on some business, such as the months-long study on recent boundary changes and the 1976-77 school calendar.

For Lincolnites who felt their objections to personal-social development were ignored by the board, the public schools staff encourages continued parent involvement, said Joseph P. Rowson, administrative assistant for publications and information.

Going Through Channels

Rowson explained the following channels are available to all citizens who have concerns or complaints.

1. Inquiries first should be directed to the teacher of the individual's own child. Rowson said 99% of all problems are resolved at this point.

2. Parents may request a meeting with team teachers involved, or the unit leader, as the next step.

3. If parents are still dissatisfied, they should make an appointment to talk with the school building principal.

4. If the principal can't fix the problem, parents may address their complaints by call or letter to Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction.

On request, Brandt will supply a complaint form, to which he'll also respond. Meanwhile, he may assemble a committee of teachers and specialists to examine specific material in question, and the members will make a recommendation.

Should the complaint involve a certain book, for example, Brandt may direct it be removed from use, or order its use restricted to certain groups, such as junior and senior high students only.

Teacher Council

Brandt may also convene a representative group of all teachers district-wide, called the Council on Instruction, to conduct investigations and make recommendations.

4-a. As an alternative, anyone should "feel free to contact any of our consultants in our subject-matter areas," Rowson said. Consultants may be able to explain programs and curriculum content or investigate whether materials are being used properly. They "have the power to get a correction made."

5. If still dissatisfied at this point, parents should contact Supt. John Prasch. He may:

- Reverse any committee recommendations.
- Schedule a public hearing, inviting board members to hear all citizen comment. Such hearings are held routinely on budget proposals. Special hearings recently have included Title IX (on sex discrimination) and one last year on policy to allow students to eat lunch off campus.
- Appoint an ad hoc committee to examine material. Examples currently in operation include Prasch's Cultural Awareness Advisory Committee, Title IX and business education. Members usually include school staff, laymen and students.

—Ask the school board president to place the matter on an official meeting agenda for discussion.

The board may also sit as a "committee of the whole," inviting interested persons — usually professional staff — to provide information on a given topic or issue. Such "work sessions" are, as a rule, not forums for public debate, and the board may take no official action then.

6. Any citizen may request time to speak at any formal board meeting, usually held the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, the latter in the evening. Requests should be submitted by the preceding Thursday through Prasch's office.

The board president may place time restrictions on individual comment, and may declare out of order anyone whose presentation becomes personal or abusive. The president may also allow anyone else present to speak to an issue already on the agenda, under board policy.

In matters not affecting specific children or curricula, but which apply generally to a school building operation or needs, Rowson said the best approach is through the parent organization.

Examples include speed limits on streets around a school, possible need for a traffic light or desired playground equipment.

The parent group is also the logical avenue to use when requesting general information sessions, such as "curriculum nights." The PTAs generally have standing committees to handle all such projects.

For information about special education, parents should contact Director Donald Sherrill. Eldon Heskett's student services department can help students and families with non-instructional problems.

Those may include discipline, attendance or emotional problems, counseling needs, building transfers, testing and free and reduced-price lunches eligibility.

Rowson will answer any public inquiries for general or routine information, and will refer individuals to school staff who may answer questions best.

In any case, any citizen may call or write any of the six Lincoln Board of Education members. They are elected at large, not by district; thus each member represents all Lincolnites.

Finally, anyone may contact reporters at Lincoln newspapers, radio or television stations about unresolved problems or for information.

dear abby Husband Communicates With Dead

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man who, in his youth, was in love with a girl who died very young. Billy's mother was a spiritualist, and she told him that his dead girl's spirit had communicated with her and declared that she and Billy would be soul mates eternally.

Billy now communicates directly with this girl. He has taken me to seances in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Florida, where he goes into a trance, talking to his "soul mate" in words of love and passion. He calls her "my wonderful angel girl" and "eternal love." I cry all night after these meetings.

Billy carries her picture over his heart and had a life-size oil painting made from the snapshot. He keeps the painting in his bedroom with a candle burning near it night and day. I can't take much more of this. I feel like his housekeeper. Please tell me what to do.

JEALOUS OF A SPIRIT DEAR JEALOUS: Billy's disturbed. If he doesn't see a doctor, see a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: I am frankly surprised and outraged that you would advise a woman to ask her doctor to prescribe a tranquilizer so she wouldn't break down and cry at her daughter's wedding. What's wrong with crying at a wedding? Your message implies that rather than give vent to an honest emotion and learn to cope with it, one should take a pill.

Which is worse, a tear-stained face at a wedding or the risk of over-sedation, possible side effects and a future dependency upon tranquilizers?

"D" IN PORTLAND DEAR "D": On the remote chance that over-sedation, possible side effects and future dependency upon tranquilizers could result, I would certainly agree with you that the mother should skip the tranquilizer and have a good cry. You could be right!

Opening lead - queen of hearts.

open for avenues of escape in case the battle doesn't go the way he planned it.

A good declarer follows the same course in planning his play. He keeps a backup plan in reserve to cover the possibility that something will go wrong with his main plan.

Declarer neglected to do this in today's hand. He won the heart lead with the king, played a spade to the king, and a low spade back, hoping to find the suit divided 3-2.

But when East showed out on the second spade lead, South found himself fighting a losing battle. West won the spade, established his hearts, and South had to go down one, scoring only his eight high-card tricks.

In effect, declarer had staked his all on a 3-2 spade division. But even granting that the spades were far more likely to be divided 3-2 than 4-1 (68 per cent versus 28 per cent), the fact remains that South had not permitted himself an avenue of escape if the spades proved to be divided 4-1.

He should have played the A-K of spades instead of the A-2. If both defenders followed suit, South would know that the spades were divided 3-2 and would play a third spade to insure at least ten tricks.

Ed Board's Ear Open To Citizens

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Pearl Goldenstein got to the heart of public misunderstanding of the Lincoln Board of Education.

As the board was debating merits of personal-social growth practices and endorsing their use in the public schools, Mrs. Goldenstein explained:

"We don't run the schools."

But by setting policy, she said, "we accept the responsibility" for the programs that teachers must be trusted to carry out properly.

"We need to show our faith in the staff and teachers," Mrs. Goldenstein declared, addressing a semi-hostile public audience including some who expected immediate board redress for their complaints.

Undermine Administrators

Board member T. E. Dewey also addressed the operating-vs.-governing perceptions. He said if each member were to study in detail each program the school offers, and rule on each operational point for classroom use, that "would be undermining the administration who we have hired to do the job for us."

Board policy dictates that it may never act on an agenda item the first time it's brought up before the public; such a matter must be referred to staff for recommendations on final action later. Personal-social growth was no exception, being allowed a two-week incubation period.

The board may — and does — stretch out study periods on some business, such as the months-long study on recent boundary changes and the 1976-77 school calendar.

For Lincolnites who felt their objections to personal-social development were ignored by the board, the public schools staff encourages continued parent involvement, said Joseph P. Rowson, administrative assistant for publications and information.

Going Through Channels

Rowson explained the following channels are available to all citizens who have concerns or complaints.

1. Inquiries first should be directed to the teacher of the individual's own child. Rowson said 99% of all problems are resolved at this point.

2. Parents may request a meeting with team teachers involved, or the unit leader, as the next step.

3. If parents are still dissatisfied, they should make an appointment to talk with the school building principal.

4. If the principal can't fix the problem, parents may address their complaints by call or letter to Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction.

On request, Brandt will supply a complaint form, to which he'll also respond. Meanwhile, he may assemble a committee of teachers and specialists to examine specific material in question, and the members will make a recommendation.

Should the complaint involve a certain book, for example, Brandt may direct it be removed from use, or order its use restricted to certain groups, such as junior and senior high students only.

Teacher Council

Brandt may also convene a representative group of all teachers district-wide, called the Council on Instruction, to conduct investigations and make recommendations.

4-a. As an alternative, anyone should "feel free to contact any of our consultants in our subject-matter areas," Rowson said. Consultants may be able to explain programs and curriculum content or investigate whether materials are being used properly. They "have the power to get a correction made."

5. If still dissatisfied at this point, parents should contact Supt. John Prash. He may:

- Reverse any committee recommendations.
- Schedule a public hearing, inviting board members to hear all citizen comment. Such hearings are held routinely on budget proposals. Special hearings recently have included Title IX (on sex discrimination) and one last year on policy to allow students to eat lunch off campus.

- Appoint an ad hoc committee to examine material. Examples currently in operation include Prash's Cultural Awareness Advisory Committee, Title IX and business education. Members usually include school staff, laymen and students.

—Ask the school board president to place the matter on an official meeting agenda for discussion.

The board may also sit as a "committee of the whole," inviting interested persons — usually professional staff — to provide information on a given topic or issue. Such "work sessions" are, as a rule, not forums for public debate, and the board may take no official action then.

6. Any citizen may request time to speak at any formal board meeting, usually held the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, the latter in the evening. Requests should be submitted by the preceding Thursday through Prash's office.

The board president may place time restrictions on individual comment, and may declare out of order anyone whose presentation becomes personal or abusive. The president may also allow anyone else present to speak to an issue already on the agenda, under board policy.

In matters not affecting specific children or curricula, but which apply generally to a school building operation or needs, Rowson said the best approach is through the parent organization.

Examples include speed limits on streets around a school, possible need for a traffic light or desired playground equipment.

The parent group is also the logical avenue to use when requesting general information sessions, such as "curriculum nights." The PTAs generally have standing committees to handle all such projects.

***

For information about special education, parents should contact Director Donald Sherrill. Eldon Heskett's student services department can help students and families with non-instructional problems.

Those may include discipline, attendance or emotional problems, counseling needs, building transfers, testing and free and reduced-price lunches eligibility.

***

Rowson will answer any public inquiries for general or routine information, and will refer individuals to school staff who may answer questions best.

***

In any case, any citizen may call or write any of the six Lincoln Board of Education members. They are elected at large, not by district; thus each member represents all Lincolnites.

Finally, anyone may contact reporters at Lincoln newspapers, radio or television stations about unresolved problems or for information.

dear abby Husband Communicates With Dead

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man who, in his youth, was in love with a girl who died very young. Billy's mother was a spiritualist, and she told him that his dead girl's spirit had communicated with her and declared that she and Billy would be soul mates eternally.

Billy now communicates directly with this girl. He has taken me to seances in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Florida, where he goes into a trance, talking to his "soul mate" in words of love and passion. He calls her "my wonderful angel girl" and "eternal love." I cry all night after these meetings.

Billy carries her picture over his heart and had a life-size oil painting made from the snapshot. He keeps the painting in his bedroom with a candle burning near it night and day.

I can't take much more of this. I feel like his housekeeper. Please tell me what to do.

JEALOUS OF A SPIRIT

DEAR JEALOUS: Billy's disturbed. If he doesn't see a doctor, see a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: I am frankly surprised and outraged that you would advise a woman to ask her doctor to prescribe a tranquilizer so she wouldn't break down and cry at her daughter's wedding.

What's wrong with crying at a wedding? Your message implies that rather than give vent to an honest emotion and learn to cope with it, one should take a pill.

Which is worse, a tear-stained face at a wedding or the risk of over-sedation, possible side effects and a future dependency upon tranquilizers?

"D" IN PORTLAND

DEAR "D": On the remote chance that oversedation, possible side effects and future dependency upon tranquilizers could result, I would certainly agree with you that the mother should skip the tranquilizer and have a good cry. You could be right!

Opening lead - queen of hearts.

A good general keeps his eye

open for avenues of escape in case the battle doesn't go the way he planned it.

A good declarer follows the same course in planning his play. He keeps a backup plan in reserve to cover the possibility that something will go wrong with his main plan.

Declarer neglected to do this in today's hand. He won the heart lead with the king, played a spade to the king, and a low spade back, hoping to find the suit divided 3-2.

But when East showed out on the second spade lead, South found himself fighting a losing battle. West won the spade, established his hearts, and South had to go down one, scoring only his eight high-card tricks.

In effect, declarer had staked his all on a 3-2 spade division. But even granting that the spades were far more likely to be divided 3-2 than 4-1 (68 per cent versus 28 per cent), the fact remains that South had not permitted himself an avenue of escape if the spades proved to be divided 4-1.

He should have played the A-K of spades instead of the A-2. If both defenders followed suit, South would know that the spades were divided 3-2 and would play a third spade to insure at least ten tricks.

Olympic Sex Tests Causing Controversy Among Athletes

They even gave me a certificate showing I am a woman. I have it hanging up in my bedroom.

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — "I resent it—it is a challenge to our identity," said the woman luger racer whose Olympic jacket bore the red Maple Leaf of Canada.

"If the women must take sex tests, why not the men? I've seen some male figure skaters that I think might well be included—but, for heaven's sake, don't use my name."

The mushrooming women's lib movement in America has swept across the Atlantic Ocean and taken a firm seat at these XII Winter Olympics.

Some of the women competitors are outraged that they should be subjected to what they call such a demeaning procedure. Others are amused while still others, mainly the Soviets, accept it with a shrug of the shoulders.

"It is the rule and we abide by the rules," said Tamara Moskva, a former USSR figure skating star who now is a coach.

Of the 1,039 athletes who begin competition Wednesday, 248 are women. Before they are allowed to compete, each woman must undergo a sex test. A smear is taken from inside the jaw and if laboratory tests of the smear show a preponderance of male hormones, the competitor is declared ineligible for women's competition.

"I think it's hysterical," said Anne Henning of Northbrook, Ill., a gold medalist in speed skating four years ago at Sapporo and now a television commentator. "They even gave me a certificate showing I am a woman. I have it hanging up in my bedroom."

Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., America's chief hope for the women's figure skating title, faced up to the matter at a formal news conference.

"It doesn't bother me," she said.

Erica Taylor of Britain, who skates in the pairs with her husband, Colin, said she was amused by the ritual at first but does feel there is a demeaning feature to it.

"Can you imagine what Billie Jean King would do if she came to the Olympics?" she asked, referring to the United States' prominent women's liber. "She would raise quite a fuss."

Two attractive Nordic skiers from Norway, Grete Kummer and Berit Johannesson, both took the matter in stride.

Karen Kuntze, a Swiss figure skater, and her team leader, Jacqueline Alice Itchner, said they could understand some resentment in America, where the women's lib movement is strong, but added that, as Swiss, they could accept it.

"After all, I think the problem is not with the Winter Games but with the Summer Games," Ms. Itchner said.

Barbara Berlezowski, a Canadian figure skater, said she thought men should have to take tests just as the women do.

"Why not?" she asked. "Everyone should be equal." Several teammates agreed.

Since the tests were inaugurated by the International Olympic Committee in 1968, there have been suspicions raised but no action taken. Erika Schmiegger, a champion Austrian skier who was world downhill champion in 1966, had her sex changed to that of a man. She never competed in the Olympics.

There was a disqualification in a Polish-

Russian track meet, and some husky field events competitors have withdrawn from the Olympics rather than take tests. Most countries, to prevent embarrassment, have their athletes undergo examinations before sending teams to the Games.

"If a girl is a boy, it makes a lot of difference," said Nicola Spiess, Austrian downhill skier, "but if a boy is girl it doesn't matter."

Dr. Dan Hanley, head of the U.S. Olympic team medical force and a member of the IOC panel, said he couldn't have said it better.

"It's a matter of philosophy," he said, explaining why men were not similarly checked. "Men are more muscular and stronger. A man with feminine tendencies would not have an advantage. A woman with male tendencies definitely would."

Revised Scheduling For State Tourneys Hinges On Center

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Big school and small school basketball fans are likely to find the revised state high school tournament Mar. 11-13 more in tune with their time schedules.

No longer will Classes A and C share the same semifinal site. The same thing no longer will hold true for Classes B and D.

According to the revised schedule in anticipation of moving the major part of the state tourney to the new sports center, Class A semifinals now will be played with Class B and Class C semifinals with Class D.

A, B At Night

The new format also will allow Saturday's championship card to progress with Classes D and C in the afternoon and Classes B and A that night instead of the usual C-B-D-A script.

According to Nebraska School Activities Assn. (NSAA) assistant executive secretary Jim Riley, here's the proposed new state tourney schedule:

Class A — all games at the new sports center.

Class D — first round games at Lincoln High School; semifinals at Pershing Auditorium; championship at sports center.

The NSAA is operating under the assumption the new sports center will accommodate the 66th annual state tourney. If it is not ready, the old state tourney schedule will be used with East High School becoming a first round site for Class D.

"I think it will be ready though," Riley said. "They've got 22% of the floor laid now and another month to complete the job. We're all looking forward to playing the state tourney in there."

State Preview

Although district tournaments are still a month away for the larger schools, here's the most recent list of district leaders:

Class A — Lincoln Southeast, Omaha Benson, Omaha North, Omaha Burke, Omaha Northwest, Fremont, Grand Island and North Platte.

Class B — Crete, Ashland, Omaha Ryan, Arlington, Hartington Cedar Catholic, Ord, Lexington and Sidney.

The strongest Class A district could be A-2 with Omaha Tech and Bellevue joining highly-ranked Benson and Creighton Prep. Equally strong is A-1 with Lincoln's four public schools, three of which are rated.

The strongest Class B district could be B-7 with Lexington, Holdrege, Minden, Cozad, Broken Bow, Gothenburg, Superior and Hastings Adams Central. B-2 is also strong with Ashland, Wahoo, Seward, York, David City Aquinas, Waverly, Lincoln Plus X and Raymond Central.

The weakest Class A district might be A-5 with Omaha Northwest, Omaha Bryan, Omaha Gross and Omaha South. The weakest in B appears to be B-5 with Creighton, Crofton, Hartington CC, O'Neill, Pierce, Randolph, Wayne and Wisner-Pilger.

Junior Mary Mulligan led Pius X with 22 points and 14 rebounds, but the Thunderbolts were unable to stop Columbus' fast break throughout the game.

Pius X lowered its record to 7-4 with the loss.

Doane Downs NWU Women

Crete (UPI) — Freshman Karen Kulwicki scored a school record 35 points Monday night to lead Doane to a 69-29 victory over Nebraska Wesleyan in a women's basketball game.

Kulwicki scored 21 points in the first half when Doane built up a 39-9 lead. It was Doane's third win of the season against four losses.

Nebraska Wesleyan, 1-11, was led by Mel Creighton, who scored 10 points.

NWU — Creighton 10, Mark 9, Lambert 6, Calder 2, Rolsmeyer 2.

Doane — Kulwicki 35, Valente 14, Butler 9, Glass 7, Liljetun 4.

Halftime score — Doane 39, NWU 9.

Creighton Wins, 76-53

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Underclassmen Rick Apke and Cornell Smith sent Creighton on a 10-point spree midway through the final half en route to a 76-53 victory over faltering St. Louis University in nonconference basketball Monday night.

Sophomore Apke totaled 18 points in boosting the Bluejays' record to 15-5.

Don't expect Nebraska to give up just because it lost to Missouri's basketball team.

"We have two real tough games back to back," said NU coach Joe Cipriano at Monday's weekly press briefing. "I don't anticipate any letdown for Kansas. In fact, I think we'll be more than ready to play."

Despite losing 62-57 to Missouri at the NU Coliseum on Saturday, the Huskers (4-1) are still in second place in the Big Eight standings. But the improving Kansas Jayhawks (3-2) could tie NU by defeating the Huskers in Wednesday's 7:35 p.m. game at the NU Coliseum.

That concerns Cipriano. It also concerns him that KU has beaten Nebraska seven straight times, including a 69-66 decision in the league's preseason tournament in late December at Kansas City.

"We're aware that a rivalry exists between us, but I'm glad we had a chance to play them at KC. Now we can figure out what we did wrong. We just didn't play well down there."

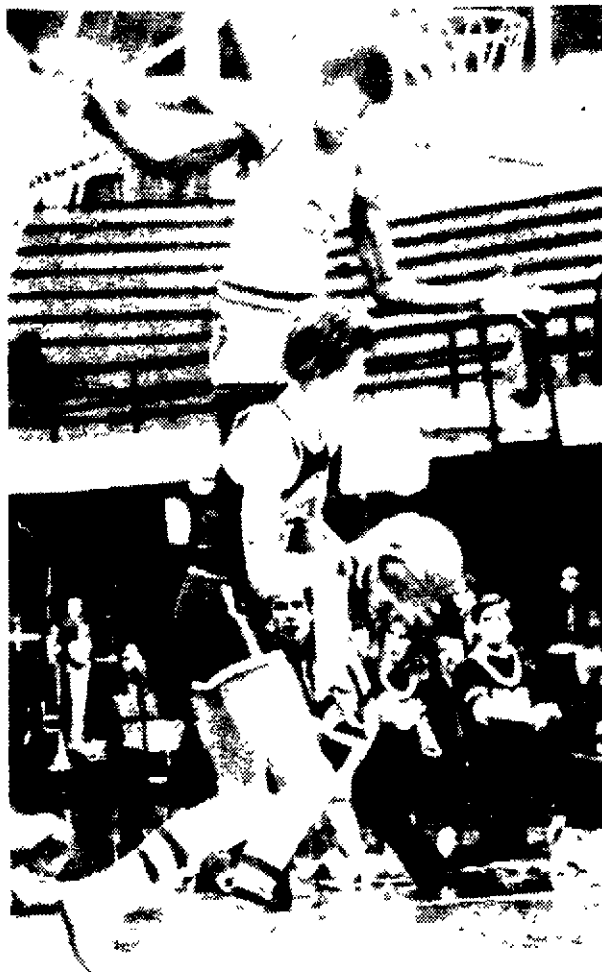

"We were nervous and tight and we didn't start to loosen up until the second half," he continued. "The first half was very poor offensively and defensively, but we came back in the second half defensively. We still didn't play well offensively."

Cipriano noted what may be a key in the

Holmes Takes Chance, Matches Best Series

By BOB MOYER

Pam Holmes took a chance for the city bowling tournament and everything came up aces.

Holmes went to a fingertip ball just before the tourney opened after using a conventional before. The experiment seemed a dud, too, as she immediately had troubles in league play, shooting low 400s.

But in the tournament, everything came together as she shot 584 in Class A teams to spark her five. The Ayres Bunch, to an all-time tourney handicap best of 2990 Saturday at Parkway and then shot 584 again Monday night as she and her partner, Sue Portsche, took over the scratch and handicap lead in women's doubles with a 1089-204-1293 total.

That total was only two pins shy of a tourney handicap record, missing the 1295 score by Shirley Gaylor and Glenda Drucker, recorded last year.

"It didn't seem like we were bowling that well," Holmes said of her team's score. "But we had 1,000-something the first two games. We were really excited, screaming and shouting."

"We were shooting for 1,000 each game, but I let us down the last game and tubed another chance at 600," Holmes said, adding "Those 584s are my best series. I seem to be good at blowing 600s."

After the big score in the team event, Portsche said they didn't know what to expect in doubles and singles.

UNO Loses In Overtime

MARYVILLE, Mo. (AP)—David Alvey scored 12 of his 28 points in overtime to lead Northwest Missouri State to a 102-98 basketball victory over Nebraska-Omaha Monday night.

Cipriano: No Letdown Anticipated

Wednesday's game: KU's towering front line.

Taller front lines have generally been a problem for Nebraska. Take Washington, for example. With a front line averaging nearly 6-9, the Huskies roared to a 75-63 victory here in early December.

Granted, Washington is a nationally rated club. Still, taller front lines have more than held their own against the Huskers.

"Size has always been a factor against us," Cipriano said. "KU has an excellent front line but they don't have the depth Missouri has. They're probably more aggressive than anyone in the conference. Missouri's on a par with them, but they can bring plenty of people off the bench."

KU's front line has been led by Norm Cook, a 6-9 junior forward, who is averaging 14.5 points and 7.4 rebounds per game. He is joined by sophomore forward Ken Koenings (10.1 points and 6.8 rebounds) and freshman center Paul Mokeski, a seven-footer, and 6-7 junior Herb Nobles, averaging almost 13 points.

Cipriano praised KU guard Clint Johnson, for his defensive efforts that limited Fort to 5-of-19 field-goal performance and only 12 points in Kansas City.

"I thought he did an excellent job on Jerry," Cipriano said. "Jerry's got to play how the defense covers him. He'll (Fort) just have to pick his ways very carefully."

Sports Signals

By Bob Owens
Star Sports Editor

Fort KU Nemesis

Nebraska senior guard Jerry Fort needs just 26 points in his two remaining games against Kansas to become the all-time nemesis of the Jayhawks.

Fort has scored 163 points in 10 games against the Jayhawks, a figure topped by only three other players in KU basketball history.

Ahead of him are Don Side of Oklahoma (1966-67-68), with 188 points in eight games; Don Smith of Iowa State (1966-67-68), with 186 points in eight games; and Cliff Meely of Colorado (1969-70-71), with 174 points in seven games.

Meely's 24.9 point a game average is the highest ever recorded by a conference opponent against Kansas, although Missouri's Willie Smith has an excellent chance to top that figure.

Smith has averaged 26.8 points in four tries against the Jayhawks and has one more game at Kansas on Feb. 18.

Norm Cook Moving Up

Nebraska coach Joe Cipriano called Kansas forward Norman Cook "one of the best players in the United States" when he discussed Jayhawk personnel at Monday's press briefing.

Cook, a widely sought high schooler from Lincoln, Ill., now is a junior for Coach Ted Owens and he's moving up on KU scoring and rebounding career charts.

"He can do everything," Cipriano said. "We can't afford to let him get started." In the KU double low post offense, which hurt the Huskers last season, Cook probably will be guarded by Allen Holder.

Cook has scored 865 career points, moving him into 19th spot on Kansas' all-time list. He also has logged 544 rebounds, moving him into 14th spot.

Owens has been pleased with the recent play of Cook, who has been providing some of the stability the youthful Jayhawks were missing in early games.

In his last two games, Cook had 16 points both against Colorado and Kansas State. He also picked up 13 rebounds against the Buffaloes and eight last Saturday against the Wildcats.

Momentum To KU?

Owens thinks Kansas' victory over the Wildcats last Saturday will help carry the Jayhawks over into the battle here Wednesday night.

"It's always tough to win at Nebraska because of the great rivalry between the two schools," he said. "Also, this game is crucial for us in the conference race because at this point the teams which can win on the road are going to have a shot at the title."

Owens points out that KU's goal at the start of the season was to win a third straight outright Big Eight championship. "We still have considerable improvement to make, but I'm gaining confidence that we're going to achieve it."

He said KU's problems in some of the losses on the road have been digging itself into a hole early.

"That obviously has killed us in virtually every road game thus far with the exception of the Big Eight tournament," he said. "You can't dictate or control the tempo when you're behind early. It keeps you from doing some of the things you would like to do."

Owens mentioned the Oklahoma State loss at Stillwater. "We would have liked to have played some zone defense but we were unable to because we got behind," he said. "I don't like to start a game in a zone because I think there is too much of a chance you'll be passive and non-aggressive. We simply must come out ready to play from the very beginning."

Attles Seeks Reversal Of All-Star Setback

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Golden State's Al Attles, the losing coach in last year's National Basketball Association All-Star Game, doesn't intend to lose again when the NBA holds its 26th annual midseason game Tuesday night at the Spectrum.

"If there are players who don't want to play, I wish they would let us know immediately so we can get someone else," the weary Attles said Monday after an overnight flight brought him into snowy Philadelphia about 2 1/2 hours late. "If they don't want to play, that's fine, but please tell us. Or if anyone has an injury, they should also say so."

Attles, coach of the Western Conference team for the second year in a row, will have three of the same starters who began last season's All-Star Game, won by the East 108-103 at Phoenix. They are forward Rick Barry of Golden State, center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles and guard Nate Archibald of Kansas City. Archibald led the West last year with 27 points, Barry scored 22 points and had game-high figures of eight assists and eight steals, and the 7-foot-3 1/2 Abdul-Jabbar topped all rebounders with 19.

The West's other starters—all of whom were picked in fan balloting—will be forward Bob Dandridge and guard Brian Winters, both from Milwaukee.

The favored East, to be coached by Tom Heinsohn of Boston, has four of its five starters back from last year, including forwards John Havlicek of Boston and Elvin Hayes of Washington, center Bob McAdoo of Buffalo and guard Walt Frazier of New York. Frazier led all scorers with 30 points and was voted the game's Most Valuable Player.

This year, Frazier will be trying to become the first player to win two consecutive outright MVP awards in All-Star competition. Bob Pettit, formerly of St. Louis, was the only player ever to win the honor twice in a row, in 1956 and 1959, but the second year he shared the award with Elgin Baylor of Los Angeles.

Alongside Frazier in the East backcourt will be Dave Bang of Washington.

The East's reserves—chosen by the conference coaches—will be forwards John Drew of Atlanta, George McGinnis of Philadelphia and Rudy Tomjanovich of Houston, center Dave Cowens of Boston and guards Jo Jo White of Boston, Randy Smith of Buffalo and Doug Collins of Philadelphia.

On the bench for the West will be forwards Scott Wedman of Kansas City, Curtis Rowe of Detroit and Jamaal Wilkes of Golden State, center Alvan Adams of Phoenix and guards Norm Van Lier of Chicago, Phil Smith of Golden State and Fred Brown of Seattle.

Eleven of the 24 players will be appearing in their first All-Star Game, a record after the first year of the game in 1951. The only rookie, however, is the 6-9 Adams, who leads Phoenix in scoring, rebounds, assists and blocked shots.

NBA Dream Backcourt Relegated To Television

Philadelphia (AP) — Earl Monroe, Charlie Scott, Phil Chenier, Calvin Murphy and Pete Maravich.

A coach's dream backcourt? Perhaps, but those stellar guards have something else in common: they all will be watching Tuesday night's National Basketball Association All-Star Game on television.

They were victims of a talent squeeze, an abundance of backcourt men of All-Star caliber in the NBA's Eastern Conference.

Walt Frazier of New York and Dave Bang of Washington earned the starting guard spots in the fans' balloting. Both have been among the league's premier guards for years and understandably did well in the fans' popularity poll. The conference coaches gave the three backup spots to Randy Smith of Buffalo, Jo Jo White of Boston and Doug Collins of Philadelphia, all of whom are having good seasons.

So Monroe, Scott & Co. are left out in the cold. Each has a much talent as any All-Star, and may even be playing the best basketball of his life. But it wasn't enough for a trip to Philadelphia.

Olympic Sex Tests Causing Controversy Among Athletes

'They even gave me a certificate showing I am a woman. I have it hanging up in my bedroom.'

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — "I resent it—it is a challenge to our identity," said the woman luger whose Olympic jacket bore the red Maple Leaf of Canada.

"If the women must take sex tests, why not the men? I've seen some male figure skaters that I think might well be included—but, for heaven's sake, don't use my name."

The mushrooming women's lib movement in America has swept across the Atlantic Ocean and taken a firm seat at these XII Winter Olympics.

Some of the women competitors are outraged that they should be subjected to what they call such a demeaning procedure. Others are amused while still others, mainly the Soviets, accept it with a shrug of the shoulders.

"It is the rule and we abide by the rules," said Tamara Moskva, a former USSR figure skating star who now is a coach.

Of the 1,039 athletes who begin competition Wednesday, 248 are women. Before they are allowed to compete, each woman must undergo a sex test. A smear is taken from inside the jaw and for laboratory tests of the smear show a preponderance of male hormones, the competitor is declared ineligible for women's competition.

"I think it's hysterical," said Anne Henning of Northbrook, Ill., a gold medalist in speed skating four years ago at Sapporo and now a television commentator. "They even gave me a certificate showing I am a woman. I have it hanging up in my bedroom."

Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., America's chief hope for the women's figure skating title, faced up to the matter at a formal

news conference.

"It doesn't bother me," she said.

Erica Taylor of Britain, who skates in the pairs with her husband, Colin, said she was amused by the ritual at first but does feel there is a demeaning feature to it.

"Can you imagine what Billie Jean King would do if she came to the Olympics?" she asked, referring to the United States' prominent women's liber. "She would raise quite a fuss."

Two attractive Nordic skiers from Norway, Grete Kummer and Berit Johannessen, both took the matter in stride.

"It is nothing," they said.

Creighton Wins, 76-58

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Underclassmen Rick Apke and Cornell Smith sent Creighton on a 10-point spree midway through the final half en route to a 76-58 victory over faltering St. Louis University in nonconference basketball Monday night.

Sophomore Apke totaled 18 points in boosting the Jayhawks' record to 15-5.

Don't expect Nebraska to give up just because it lost to Missouri's basketball team.

"We have two real tough games back to back," said NU coach Joe Cipriano at Monday's weekly press briefing. "I don't anticipate any letdown for Kansas. In fact, I think we'll be more than ready to play."

Despite losing 62-57 to Missouri at the NU Coliseum on Saturday, the Huskers (4-1) are still in second place in the Big Eight standings. (3-2) could tie the NU by defeating the Huskers in Wednesday's 7:35 p.m. game at the NU Coliseum.

That concerns Cipriano. It also concerns him that KU has beaten Nebraska seven straight times, including a 69-66 decision in the league's preseason tournament in late December at Kansas City.

"We're aware that a rivalry exists between us, but I'm glad we had a chance to play them at KC. Now we can figure out what we did wrong. We just didn't play well down there."

"We were nervous and tight and we didn't start to loosen up until the second half," he continued. "The first half was very poor offensively and defensively, but we came back in the second half defensively. We still didn't play well offensively."

Cipriano noted what may be a key in the

MARYVILLE, Mo. (AP)—David Alvey scored 12 of his 28 points in overtime to lead Northwest Missouri State to a 102-98 basketball victory over Nebraska-Kansas Monday night.

After the big score in the team event, Portsche said they didn't know what to expect in doubles and singles.

That total was only two pins shy of a tourney handicap record, missing the 1295 score by Shirley, recorded last year.

"It didn't seem like we were bowling that well," Holmes said of her team's score. "But we had 1,000-something the first two games. We were really excited, screaming and shouting."

"We were shooting for 1,000 each game, but I let us down the last game and tumbled another chance at 600," Holmes said, adding "Those 584s are my best series. I seem to be good at blowing 600s."

Holmes Takes Chance, Matches Best Series

By BOB MOYER

Pam Holmes took a chance for the city bowling tournament and everything came up aces.

Holmes went to a fingertip ball just before the tourney opened after using a conventional before. The experiment seemed a dud, too, as she immediately had troubles in league play, shooting low 400s.

But in the tournaments, everything came together as she shot 584 in Class A teams to spark her five, The Ayres Bunch, to an all-time tourney handicap best of 2990 Saturday at Parkway and then shot 584 again Monday night as she and her partner, Sue Portsche, took over the scratch and handicap lead in women's doubles with a 1089-204-1293 total.

That total was only two pins shy of a tourney handicap record, missing the 1295 score by Shirley, recorded last year.

"Both houses are strange alleys to us," she said. "We really feel fortunate."

Holmes added, "We hadn't bowled in Emerald for several years, but the lanes were really good."

While Holmes was shooting 584, Portsche added 505. Holmes was using 151 for her tourney average, while Portsche had 144.

"We were really nervous," Holmes added. "But somehow when you're up at the line holding the ball, the nervousness seems to go away."

"I was thinking 'concentrate' all the time," Holmes added. "If I threw a good ball and left a 10-pin I'd tell myself to not worry, to just get my spare and then come back."

After her two good series, Holmes let down with a 526 in singles.

"I started throwing the ball wrong. It was really dumb," Holmes said. "The condition was still good, but I just wasn't getting any lift on the ball."

Nevertheless, after her good showing in the tourney, Holmes says she's going to stay with the fingertip.

"I was going to take both balls tonight (Monday)," Holmes said, "but my husband (Duane) said that would just mess me up. So I took the fingertip and now I'm glad I did."

The only change among the leaders in the men's tourney, was at Hollywood where Victory Cleaners took over the team scratch and handicap lead with 3097-126-3223.

Members of the team included Steve Nye (641); Larry Siebe (627); Lyle Petersen (624); Joe Juricek (623) and Paul Portsche (582).

Besides Holmes and Portsche, leaders changed in women's singles and doubles divisions.

Jen Sklenicka took the handicap lead in the Class A singles with a 599-84-683 total while Linda Voecks took the lead in Class B singles with 520-120-640. Voecks, a 219 average bowler, had a 201 game in her 520 series.

In the women's Class B doubles, Jennie Layton and Melba McDowell took over the scratch lead with 1077.

Also, Ruby Dill's leading all events total was incorrectly reported by the Women's Bowling Association Sunday. Dill had a 579 series in team event to give her 1721, not 1681.

Fort KU Nemesis

Nebraska senior guard Jerry Fort needs just 26 points in his two remaining games against Kansas to become the all-time nemesis of the Jayhawks.

Fort has scored 163 points in 10 games against the Jayhawks, a figure topped by only three other players in KU basketball history.

Ahead of him are Don Sidle of Oklahoma (1966-67-68), with 188 points in eight games; Don Smith of Iowa State (1966-67-68), with 186 points in eight games; and Cliff Meely of Colorado (1969-70-71), with 174 points in seven games.

Meely's 24.9 point a game average is the highest ever recorded by a conference opponent against Kansas, although Missouri's Willie Smith has an excellent chance to top that figure.

Smith has averaged 26.8 points in four tries against the Jayhawks and has one more game at Kansas on Feb. 18.

Here's a rundown on Fort's totals against Kansas: Freshman — 27 at Kansas City, 14 at Lawrence and 18 at Lincoln; Sophomore — 20 at Kansas City, 12 at Lawrence and 18 at Lincoln; Junior — 8 at Kansas City, 6 at Lawrence and 28 at Lincoln; Senior — 12 at Kansas City.

Norm Cook Moving Up

Nebraska coach Joe Cipriano called Kansas forward Norman Cook "one of the best players in the United States" when he discussed Jayhawk personnel at Monday's press briefing.

Cook, a widely sought high school player from Lincoln, Ill., now is a junior for Coach Ted Owens and he's moving up on KU scoring and rebounding career charts.

"He can do everything," Cipriano said. "We can't afford to let him get started." In the KU double low post offense, which hurt the Huskers last season, Cook probably will be guarded by Allen Holder.

Cook has scored 865 career points, moving him into 19th spot on Kansas' all-time list. He also has logged 544 rebounds, moving him into 14th spot.

Owens has been pleased with the recent play of Cook, who has been providing some of the stability the youthful Jayhawks were missing in early games.

In his last two games, Cook had 16 points both against Colorado and Kansas State. He also picked up 13 rebounds against the Buffaloes and eight last Saturday against the Wildcats.

Momentum To KU?

Owens thinks Kansas' victory over the Wildcats last Saturday will help carry the Jayhawks over into the battle here Wednesday night.

The Nebraska Wesleyan Plainsmen hoping to get on the winning side of a conference record will host Concordia of Seward Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. in Taylor Gym in a Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference game.

Indiana Still First Missouri Climbs To 10th

New York (UPI) — Big Eight Conference leader Missouri, fresh off a 62-57 win over Nebraska, moved into a tie for 10th place in the college basketball rankings of the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The 17-2 Tigers moved up four notches over last week's poll, aided by the victory in Lincoln and a 72-58 win over Oklahoma. Missouri was tied for 10th by North Carolina State, which moved up two spots despite a 102-84 loss to Maryland. The Wolfpack also edged Virginia 75-73.

Indiana ho-hummed its way to another two wins and a Big Ten record 28 straight victories this past week to once again grab unanimously top spot.

The Hoosiers are now 18-0 overall, 9-0 in the conference, after an easy 88-73 game with Iowa and a 114-61 drubbing of Wisconsin. That slaughter of the Badgers erased a 14-year-old record for consecutive conference wins held by Ohio State and instrumental in that skein was Bobby Knight—now Indiana's coach.

All 42 coaches on the Board picked Indiana No. 1 for a perfect 420 points and gave the Hoosiers a 71-point hold on their position in this, the ninth week of regular season rankings.

opener and its conference opener but lost 15 other games including 14 straight. The last time the Bulldogs faced NWU the Plainsmen came out on top winning handily 106-85.

But the Bulldogs have improved with freshman forward Mark Tiemann, who has been averaging 15 points per game in his last six outings, including a 28 point performance against Wesleyan.

NWU center Blake Butler scored a team high of 28 points in the last meeting with Concordia and senior guard Bob Knollenberg scored 31 points in NWU's Saturday loss to Doane. Junior guard Angelo Lilly is the Plainsmen's leading scorer with a 13.8 points per game average, including a 20 point performance against Doane.

Knollenberg is second with a 12.8 average followed by Butler at 11.1 and forward Kim Veerhusen at 10.6.

"We've been shooting pretty well in our last couple of games," said NWU coach Irv Peterson. "I think that if our full court press and our spread offense keep working well we could get a couple of good wins, including one over Concordia."

Marquette also racked up two easy wins to remain second at 16-1, defeating Georgia Tech 55-44 and Loyola (Ill.) 85-59. The Warriors again held better than a 100-point margin over their nearest competitor, polling 29 second place votes and being named on all but one ballot.

North Carolina, chosen on all but two coaches' ballots, edged past undefeated Nevada-Las Vegas into the show spot. Both times won three times but the Tar Heels included two teams then ranked among the top 20 as their victims — Maryland, 95-93 in overtime, and Wake Forest, 88-85 and also in overtime.

North Carolina also knocked off ACC rival Clemson 79-64 to rise to 15-2 and received 244 points, three more than the Rebels, after trailing Las Vegas by two points last week. The Rebels, 23-0, had no trouble with their opponents, but none of the three losers were ranked clubs.

Washington remained fifth; a 75-65 victory over cross-state rival Washington State gave the Huskies a 17-1 record and 234 points, only seven less than Las Vegas.

Rutgers and Maryland also switched positions, with the Terps ascending sixth ahead of the Scarlet Knights. Rutgers added a 102-71 shellacking of Pittsburgh to its unbeaten record to go to 16-0; Maryland played three top-20 schools and beat two of them—North Carolina State, 102-84, and Notre Dame, 69-63—while absorbing the overtime loss to North Carolina to move to 15-3.

Tennessee and UCLA each moved up one place to eighth and ninth, respectively, as last week's No. 8, Alabama, lost its only game—to Tennessee, 80-74, to drop to 15th. The Vols also defeated LSU 105-92 and are 142 while the Bruins were 68-62 winners over Southern Cal in their only game and are 15-3.

Notre Dame was 12th, followed by St. John's (N.Y.), Michigan, Alabama, Utah, Louisville, Oregon State, and Princeton and Cincinnati in a tie for 20th.

Sprinkler Shut Off; Fire Is Spectacular

BOSTON (AP) — Firemen discovered a new sprinkler system shut off in an apartment complex for artists gutted by a spectacular fire that left damage estimated at $1 million.

Meanwhile, seven young girls were killed in separate fires in Cresson, Pa., and Apopka, Fla., where two blazes occurred on the same block within hours.

Five firemen were injured in the Boston blaze Sunday night and early Monday but none of the building's 100 residents was hurt.

Some 30 people were rescued from the roof and two companies of firemen were rescued from a stairwell after they were trapped when stairs collapsed.

In Cresson, Pa., four young girls died Monday in an apartment blaze.

Killed were Michelle Adkins, 13; her sister, Sally, 7; Beverly Ritz, 13, a friend spending the night, and babysitter Diane Eger, 16.

In Apopka, three infant girls, including 15-month-old twins, were killed and another child severely burned in unrelated fires at two homes some 100 yards apart on one block.

The victims were identified as twins Carmen and Sara Marta Moreno, and Lisa Hudson, 1. Another Hudson child, Tonya, 5, was hospitalized with second-degree burns over most of her body.

Profit Taking, Winter Storm Cool Market

New York (AP) — Profit taking and a winter storm in the New York area combined to cool down the stock market Monday, leaving prices mixed in the lightest trading in four weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had posted a record monthly gain of 122.87 points during January, dropped 3.93 to 971.35.

Advances, however, outpaced declines by about a 4-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume was an even 24 million shares, down from an all-time high of 38.51 million Friday and the highest total since a 21.96 million-share day on Jan. 5.

Turnover in NYS-listed issues, including activity in those stocks on other markets around the country, came to 27.66 million shares as of the close in New York.

The Big Board delayed its opening until 11:15 a.m.—an hour and 15 minutes after the scheduled start of trading—because of transportation problems posed by snow and high winds that hit much of the northeastern part of the country.

The activity that followed was brisk by usual standards, but considerably off the pace of January, when the daily total averaged more than 30 million shares.

Brokers noted a natural tendency to take profits after a dramatic rise in stock prices all through last month.

They also noted some uncertainty over how much farther the recent downturn in interest rates might go.

Planner Disagreement On Widening Discussed

City Council members said they weren't going to talk about a letter from the planning commission on street widening projects, then proceeded to discuss it Monday.

Members of the planning commission disagree with one of the policies on transportation the City Council adopted last week. And, last Wednesday, the planners authorized their chairman, George Williamson, to write a letter protesting that decision.

The statement said, "Predominately residential streets should not be widened or improved to a degree which changes the environmental character of the street or violates required setback distance."

The council adopted that policy on a split vote.

Williamson said the statement really closes some of the city's choices in handling traffic problems.

"I hate to see the council or anyone else continually eliminate all our alternatives. I feel they're boxing themselves in," Williamson said.

In discussing the planners' viewpoint, Councilman Bob Jeambey said he saw no reason to reopen discussion on the issue because the decision had been made.

Jeambey said he was concerned that transportation planners working on the city-county transportation study would view the commissioners' discussion as another excuse to delay planning.

The council ought to make it clear, he said, that "the matter has not been left hanging."

Councilman Steve Cook, who voted against including the statement as worded, said, "The repercussions of this could be quite severe" and suggested the lawmakers take a second look at the proposal.

Councilman Max Denney was adamant, however.

"The decision is clear. We said what we meant and that's it."

Councilwoman Sue Bailey said the statement didn't prevent the officials from constantly reassessing the policy to see if any adjustments are warranted in some specific case.

Jeambey said if the council retained the policy, the burden of proof would be placed on those who propose that a street be widened. If the statement is scratched, he said, the burden of proof shifts to neighborhood groups and others who oppose such widening projects.

The council left the statement in its document on transportation goals and policies.

High-Rise Better Than Monkey Isle

Memphis, Tenn. (UPI) — The trees and jungle bars on Monkey Island at the Overton Park Zoo can't compete with the ledges and balconies of a nearby high-rise apartment as a playground for four rhesus monkeys.

The four monkeys escaped from the zoo Jan. 23, and zookeeper Dr. Joel Wallace hasn't been able to lure them back.

"They can go from the bottom floor to the top floor in no time," Wallace said Monday as he plotted strategy for another attempt to capture the four female monkeys from the 12-story Parkway House apartment complex.

"They scoot around on these like flies," Wallace sighed. "That's become a giant monkey jungle gym."

Moat Was Drained

Wallace said seven monkeys got off Monkey Island while a 20-foot moat surrounding their home was drained for cleaning. A group of school children visiting the zoo began chasing them and four of them left the park.

Encouraged by the feeding of friendly residents, they ensconced themselves on the ledges and balconies of the fashionable apartment complex across the street from Overton Park.

Wallace figured it will be easy to lure the animals back once they become hungry enough, but that hasn't been as easy as it sounds.

"People have been feeding them wine and dogfood, pineapples, fruits, meat and whatever you can think of," he said. "They're just not hungry."

Wallace tried to put the monkeys to sleep Sunday by feeding them apples, oranges and bread laced with an animal tranquilizer, but they weren't hungry enough to eat very much of the bait. He said they got drowsy and began rubbing their eyes, but never slowed down enough to be caught.

"We need to let them get hungry for a few days," the zoo director said. "We've asked that nobody feed them any more, and we're going to try to give them some more food with larger doses of tranquilizers Wednesday."

Manager Dislikes Them

Mrs. Lee Owens, manager of the apartments, said she'd like to get rid of the new tenants.

"I was in my apartment last night and suddenly I looked at my balcony door and there were four little faces pressed against the window watching me," she said. "If they don't get rid of them soon, I'll go nuts."

Not everybody feels the same way. "Almost everybody's enjoying it," Wallace said. "It's like a circus."

Ford To Name R.T. Johnson To CAB Post

Washington (AP) — President Ford said Monday he will nominate R. Tenney Johnson, a 17-year veteran of government service, to fill the remainder of the Civil Aeronautics Board term of Robert Timm.

That term, which expires on Dec. 31, opened up when Timm left the CAB under protest after Ford demoted him from the chairmanship. He had been accused of being too close to the airline industry.

Johnson, 45, has been general counsel for the CAB and the Energy Research and Development Administration.

Consumer Group Requests Milk-Marketing Investigation

Washington (UPI) — The National Consumers Congress Monday formally petitioned Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz to investigate milk marketing monopolies which the group said are costing consumers $150 million to $200 million a year.

NCC spokesmen charged that monopoly price increases forced by giant farmer cooperatives in some regions add over 4 cents per half gallon to consumer costs.

A spokesman for Butz said the NCC petition had been referred to the Agriculture Department's general counsel for study.

In a separate development, dairy farmer lobbyists cranked up a drive to persuade Congress to override President Ford's veto last Friday of a bill increasing federal price supports for milk.

Congressional aides said a Senate vote on the veto may be scheduled Wednesday, and Patrick B. Healy, secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation, said he has "very real hopes" that both the House and Senate will override the veto after two unsuccessful challenges to Ford's rejections of similar bills in 1975.

The vetoed bill would raise federal milk supports, now set at 80% of the "fair" parity level, to a new 85% of parity floor, and would also require quarterly adjustments to keep pace with inflation in farm costs.

NCC officials, meanwhile, said their petition to Butz was filed under the 50-year-old Capper-Volstead Act which grants cooperatives limited exemptions from antitrust law. They note the act requires the agriculture secretary to issue a cease and desist order if he finds after a public hearing that farm cooperatives have "unduly enhanced" food prices by monopolistic practices.

Under federal law, the Agriculture Department sets minimum prices which buyers must pay farmers for fluid milk in areas regulated by federal marketing orders. The NCC said these floors are supposed to be fair to both farmers and consumers, but it noted that cooperatives have forced premiums averaging 64 cents per hundredweight in regulated markets over the past two years.

Healy denied that any milk monopolies exist.

Washington, D.C. Is Bicentennial Choice

New York (UPI) — The most popular destination for bicentennial year campers will be Washington, D.C., according to a survey by Kampgrounds of America. The KOA poll showed 30% of those families who already have made bicentennial travel plans indicated Washington is the primary destination. Williamsburg, Va., is the choice of 14%, and Boston and Philadelphia 8 and 5% respectively.

Elevator At Ord Topples

Ord (UPI) — The 140-foot high steel frame of a new elevator under construction for the Boisen Seed Co. was toppled Monday by winds gusting to 40 miles per hour.

The frame, which was completed last week, collapsed onto the old elevator, which was destroyed. A damage estimate was not immediately available.

Monarch Construction Co., of Kearney, the elevator contractor, said it was evaluating the damage and making plans to reconstruct the frame.

New Budget Program Could Take 5 Years

City officials predict it will take from three to five years to change how city government prepares its annual budget.

Reid Charles, the mayor's administrative director, told the City Council Monday steps are underway to convert the city's budgeting system to a program budget this year.

During this year, Charles proposed that City Hall could:

— Identify personnel in each department.

— Describe departmental functions by division which are not broken down in the budget now.

— Realign departments' accounts to reflect the change to a program budget.

Charles said in the second year, officials should set goals and objectives in each department and identify the various programs that exist.

In the third year, productivity measures will be identified and put into effect.

The City Council and mayor have been discussing changing the budget process and asked for a report on that proposal.

Charles said full implementation of a program budget eventually will require an additional three or four budget analysts.

Councilman Max Denney questioned the need to hire more people and said in his experience, the city won't save any money by switching to a new budgeting system.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey said, "It's wrong to assume that we're going into this to save money. The goal is to spend money more wisely."

"Or," Councilman Bob Jeambey added, "to eliminate the need to increase expenditures as rapidly."

Charles said a committee of people from the Finance, Personnel and Planning Departments, plus staff from the mayor's office is studying the budgeting process.

Record In Prospect

Washington (UPI) — Total loans closed by the mortgage banking industry this year could reach a record level, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association of America. It says home mortgage closings alone should be around $17 billion. The current record for loan closing of all types is $21.2 billion, set in 1972.

West Texas Plight Concerns Kremer

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

"They are absolutely desperate for water in west Texas. You see huge irrigation pumps laying in the weeds, replaced by little three-inch pumps because they are running out of water," Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora told the Nebraska Agribusiness Club Monday.

Kremer, just returned from a four-day trip through Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma and Kansas, noted "it is dry. Dust is blowing everywhere. Farmers are putting down irrigation wells as fast as the drilling rigs are available."

The plight of west Texas farmers faced with returning to a cow-calf economy following a period of prosperity from growing crops under irrigation was cited as an area of concern for Nebraskans.

"They are seriously considering treating lake water so they can recharge under ground water supplies at a cost of $23 an acre foot," he said.

Kremer warned that there are "some areas of Nebraska that could be running out of groundwater within 15 years."

Kremer noted that western Nebraska farmers were seriously considering demanding an end to drilling of new wells in their area. "They fear the big corporations will come in and take all the water in the area," he said.

Kremer predicted, "You will see some wonderful lawsuits in the courts if that happens."

Kremer said one of his concerns is that Nebraska water law is not well defined as it relates to groundwater supplies.

"The Legislature really ought to take a look at these water laws. Most farmers insist that any water under the land they own is theirs. We may have to have some kind of regulations on drilling of irrigation wells, but I don't see livestock wells being regulated," he said.

Kremer said he doubted there is a need for any new land use legislation in the state "unless the federal government pushes some more on the issue."

Kremer predicted increasing federal regulation from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). "I think we may see the day when you have to have a permit to level off the hills so a center pivot system can operate," he said.

Kremer indicated that farm organizations and members of the Legislature's Public Works Committee were divided on what to do about the proposed coal slurry pipeline in the state. "The committee took a straw vote, 4 to 4, so it is stuck in the committee for now. The Nebraska Stock Growers are against it and the Livestock Feeders are for it. The big power districts are trying to stay neutral," he said.

Kremer noted that the neutrality of the power districts was due to their need to negotiate with railroads to haul coal and the interest of railroads in electrifying their main lines through Nebraska.

Beatrice Police Nab Woman On Telephone

A 35-year-old Beatrice woman was charged Monday in connection with an alleged extortion plot involving a Minnesota man staying in a motel room near Lincoln Municipal Airport.

Beatrice police arrested the woman in her home in Beatrice while she was talking by phone with the man in his motel room. Police said the man reported he met the woman at the motel Saturday night. Later they went to his motel room and had sex, he said. During the night, he told police, the woman took $190 in cash and some prescription pills.

Next morning the man called police. While a uniformed officer and detective were in his room the woman phoned the man and told him she was a federal narcotics agent, according to police reports.

While the detective listened, the woman told the man she had made a tape recording during the night. Her partner standing outside the room also knew what went on, she told him, according to police reports.

The woman threatened to send the tape recording to his wife unless he paid her cash, police said.

While the man and woman haggled over the amount and arrangement by which the payment would be made during the course of two more phone calls, the Lincoln police had the call traced, then called Beatrice police.

According to police reports, Detective Donald Kahler listened while the woman left her phone to answer the door. He said he heard a man's voice, then a Beatrice police officer came on the line.

Marilyn Shepard was arrested and charged Monday with one count of larceny from a person and one count of extortion. A preliminary hearing will be set Feb. 17. Bond was set at $2,000.

Death In Judge's Family Delays Simants' Hearing

North Platte (AP) — A hearing on defense motions for a new trial in the case of convicted mass slayer Erwin Charles Simants was delayed Monday because of a death in the family of Lincoln County District Court Judge Hugh Stuart, who presided over the case.

Judge Stuart was called to Lexington due to the death of his aunt, Mrs. Wilfred (Mary) Stuart, who died in a Lincoln nursing home.

Simants, 30, of Sutherland, was convicted last month on six counts of first-degree murder while in the commission of, or attempted commission of sexual assault. The charges were filed in connection with the shooting deaths of six members of the Henry Kellie family of Sutherland last Oct. 18.

Last week, after a 2½-hour pre-sentence hearing, Stuart

Groundhog Pokes Head Through Layer Of Snow

A Groundhog Day winter storm brought up to 5 inches of snow to the eastern Third of Nebraska and strong winds to the central area Monday.

Omaha caught the brunt of the storm with 4 to 5 inches of snow, closing schools and causing major traffic tieups during the morning rush hours.

Snow at Nebraska City measured 4 inches, while Weeping Water recorded 3½. Three-inch falls were reported at Auburn, Plattsmouth and Wahoo.

Lincoln and Seward escaped with a mere one-inch snowfall.

Meanwhile, winds of up to 40 miles per hour toppled the 140-foot steel frame for the new grain elevator at Bolten Seed Co. at Ord early Monday. No injuries were reported as the frame, which was completed last week, fell onto the company's old elevator section.

Strong winds, gusting up to 60 m.p.h., were recorded at Grand Island shortly before 6 a.m. Monday.

Highways in the Omaha, Plattsmouth and Wahoo areas had spotted snow late Monday, said the State Roads Department. Roads in the Wayne, Laurel and Norfolk vicinities were from 50 to 75% snowpacked, according to a spokesman for the Roads Department.

While eastern Nebraskans shoveled snow Monday residents in the western section basked under partly sunny skies with temperatures there reaching into the 40s during the afternoon.

Not All Church-Owned Property Automatically Free From Taxes

Omaha (AP) — Should churches or other nonprofit groups pay property taxes on land they own but do not use?

The answer is yes, according to Douglas County Assessor Frank Bemis.

In Bemis' opinion, the law says property can be exempted from taxes only if it is both owned and used by a nonprofit religious, charitable or educational organization.

Vacant land is just one example of properties that Bemis feels should be placed on the tax rolls. Other categories include unoccupied parsonages, homes of church workers, a vacant hospital, businesses serving members of a nonprofit organization, a "haunted house" used only a few weeks per year to raise money for charity and property offered for sale.

In 67 such instances, and others involving property owned by religious, charitable or educational organizations, Bemis has recommended that exemptions be denied.

In 45 additional cases, the assessor has recommended that no exemption be granted on portions of property, while he has recommended the approval of 960 other requests for exemptions.

Officials say that for years, organizations have been getting exemptions on such property as vacant land.

"Just because they own the property doesn't automatically give them that exemption," said Deputy County Atty. Bill Ginsburg, who advises the assessor's office on legal matters.

The Rev. Dr. Ernest E. Smith, executive secretary of the Omaha Metropolitan Association of Churches, agrees that vacant or rental properties owned by churches should be taxed.

"The government feels that anything to do with the matter of religion should be exempted, but it should be a proper usage," said Dr. Smith.

Mrs. Edwards, 101, died Saturday in Eagle.

Mrs. Edwards and her late husband were in the cattle business, ranching near Burwell for many years.

Police Find No Evidence Of Foul Play

Police said Monday that no evidence of foul play has been found in the disappearance of a 39-year-old secretary employed by the Nebraska Republican Party.

Beth Ballard, of 2801 S. 13th, was last seen Jan. 25 by the woman with whom she lives. She was described as 5 feet, 6 inches tall, with light brown hair, blue eyes and weighing 120 to 130 pounds. Police said she was driving a 1965 Ford Galaxie.

Kansas Woman Killed In Crash Near Blue Hill

Red Cloud (AP) — Mrs. Anna Willmeth, 75, of Jewell, Kan., died in a Red Cloud hospital Monday night of injuries suffered a few hours earlier in a two-car collision on U.S. 281 about six miles south of Blue Hill.

Webster County Sheriff Jim Disney said Mrs. Willmeth was a passenger in a car driven by her husband Earl, 83.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMAR

Tuesday, February 3, 1976

For late night snacks, count on Cancer. For brewing wonderful coffee, Cancer fits the bill. Each individual has a food preference - much of this has been covered in popular astrological literature. A famous chef, Mike Roy, assures me that there is a correlation between food and astrology. Leo Aries and Sagittarius enjoy a barbecue more than most persons. The lists are too long to be covered here - Taurus is meat and potatoes and Gemini adores appetizers. What are your observations about food and astrology?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid premature starts - you require more information. Money could be involved. A usually reliable source may permit impulse to dominate logic. Know it and respond accordingly. Cancer Capricorn persons figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Moon aspect - Sheer sailing of clouds. Smooth. There is unknown element which could amount to deception. Project possessive. Don't spread efforts too thin. An individual with a secret hints at relationship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may have to tear down for purpose of ultimate reconstruction. Sheer sailing of clouds. Smooth. There is unknown element which could amount to deception. Project possessive. Don't spread efforts too thin. An individual with a secret hints at relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be activist - check sources. Accent on publishing, advertising, long range prospects and the unraveling of a mystery. Gemini - Virgo - do it all could play key roles. You could be called into conference by one who has authority to revise basic plan.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Might get domestic life ability to make home place of his instead of a battlefield. A concession on your part a diplomatic maneuver. (2 wds) work applies. Accent on financial arrangements, payment plans and frank discussion with partner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Go slow - the low. Main - listen and observe. You could detect a slight slant which leads to direction of satisfaction and profit. Emphasis on partnership, marriage. Legal papers are featured. Persist in do-faiming credit for achievements - do so in calm, determined manner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Key is organization - get priorities in order. Those who depend on you may be seeking too much too soon. Know if pace yourself and be sure others also live up to their responsibilities. Cancer Capricorn could figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Finish what you start - realize that what you do now could have profound effect on your future. Involvement is indicated - casual relationship as go out of window. It is all or nothing with complete devotion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Much of the past could come to screaming halt - make way for future. Welcome new contacts, new starts, added independence. Be tender, not maudlin. You have right to pioneer, to create, to imprint your own style. Those who really care will agree.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Steer clear of minor arguments, based on who did what to whom and who did it first. Key is to conserve energy, to permit ideas time to sell. Otherwise, you'll run in circles, wasting time, money, energy. Cancer indiv dual could aid in obtaining big angle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Obtain va d hint from Capricorn message. Evaluate - get added information on worth of what you own. Accent on money, possessions, payments and collections. Gemini - Sagittarius could be in picture. Social invitation helps boost morale.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cycle continues right - specify needs. You get what you want if you understand what is required. Be sure of property values. Check - the more you ask, the more you will learn. Sagittarius - Taurus - Scorpio figure in picture.

IF FEB. 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are generally optimistic, fond of food and travel, a natural entertainer. Gemini! Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life.
